Women in Medicine.

London Times: The reopening of the medical schools this year is disclosing a remarkable diminution in the number of women who are entering on professional studies. Exact figures are not yet available, but there is good ground for the belief that a tendency which was marked a year ago has become much more conspicuous today. The truth would seem to be that women are not obtaining in medicine rewards at all commensurate with the difficulties which must be overcome in obtaining qualifications to practice. At the present moment the number of applicants for every appointment is so large as to justify the view that the supply of women doctors has considerably exceeded the demand. That there is a place for women in the practice of medicine no one aware of the facts can doubt. A great part of the burden of welfare work among the poorest is borne by medical women, who are acting as missionaries of health, and, by their unselfish toil, laying the foundations of a happier future. This work cannot be performed by men; and it is more urgent today than at any former period. Thus, the hope may be expressed that the requisite number of women to fill such vacancies as occur will year after year be forthcoming. If that number is secured, the present thinning of the ranks may exercise a beneficial effect. Modern medicine is a vocation. Only those are qualified to practice it who are ready to make limitless sacrifices of time and comfort.

BRADISH FIRE IS CAUSE OF LOSS

Ten Thousand Dollars Damage Done by Blaze Starting From Explosion of Kerosene Stove.

BRADISH, Neb., Nov. 21.—Fire that was uncontrollable here Friday about 8 a. m. as a result of the explosion of a kerosene stove resulted in damage amounting to $10,000.

The blaze started in a store building and swept to two other buildings. Outside aid was secured from Albion.

The buildings belonged to Ben Stangland, Harry Mathews and John Garvey. This leaves but one store in the village. The wind was blowing a gale and the fire spread so rapidly that practically nothing was saved. The wind carried sparks for a quarter of a mile and set fire to some hay stacks in an adjoining field. The Albion fire department was called for help and arrived in time to prevent the spread of the fire. Insurance is $4,000.

LETTER NOT A FORGERY

Chamberlain Declares Cannot Accept Statement Zinoviez Letter False.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain today took up the ZinivIev letter which Russia has declared a forgery, in a separate note replying to the communication of the Russian government on this subject.

"The British government cannot accept the assertion that this letter is a forgery," the foreign minister said, "because such assertions are disproved by reference to the official publications and the daily press of Russia."

In conclusion the foreign minister says:

"Information in the hands of the British government leaves no doubt whatever in the minds as to the authenticity of the Zinoviev letter and this government therefore is not prepared to discuss the matter."

The note on the Zinoviev document sent by former Prime Minister MacDonald did not deal with the Zinoviev letter alone, the note says, "because activities of which this government complains are not confined to any one particular letter, but extend to the whole body of revolutionary propaganda of which this letter is a fair specimen."

Chamberlain quotes passages from MacDonald's note of October 24 declaring that "no government can colerate an arrangement with a foreign government which encourages and even orders the subject of the first government to plot and plan revolutions for its overthrow."

"This is true," the foreign minister reiterates, "and the soviets would do well to weigh carefully consequences of ignoring this pronouncement."

A DAWES PLAN FOR CHINESE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Word here today that the powers, including the United States, are holding a conference in Peking for the political and financial restoration of China, was followed by indication that the powers have no desire to dictate or even to suggest the personnel of the government, it is said. But they are determined to withhold support from all factions until an appreciable number of rival leaders form a coalition which will prevent recurring civil war between these same leaders.

Altho there is no suggestion here of recognizing Wu and his new Chihli party military government in the central provinces, the powers are understood to look with disfavor on any attempt of the Peking regime to prolong the feud between the Chili and Aufu parties. Concurrent with this plan for political unification is one for re-establishing China on a stable financial basis which will be possible when the threats of civil war is removed.

Various representatives of the powers including those of the United States have informally approved the latter plan. It is originated with certain American and foreign bondholders and Lian Shi Yi and other Chinese statesmen connected with the new Peking regime.

It proposes that the Chinese government ask an international commission of experts to study and suggest a re-organization of Chinese finances.

This so-called "Chinese Dawes plan" would attempt to balance the budget and enable a latter political conference to grant the necessary increased tariff revenues. China would then be able to undertake needed economic development and also begin the amoritization of her defaulted foreign debts, it is said.

PRETTY WOMAN ADMITS WRONG

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Robinson, wife of a bookmaker, who is suing the Midland bank in connection with an alleged payment made by the Midland on a check for 125,000 pounds made out to Robinson by the eastern potentate and to which the bookmaker's signature had been forged, proved an obdurate witness against efforts of the defense to show that her husband was a member of the blackmail gang and readily admitted her relations with the potentate, whose name has been kept secret for fear of international complications.

For five hours she withstood a [illegible] attack by Sir John Simon, [illegible] and retired [illegible] when court finally adjourned at 7 p. m. until Monday.

[illegible]

I was playing around and with [illegible] introduction met a member of the potentate's suite and later the prince's colored secretary.

"Next day I saw the secretary on the street and he asked me to accompany him to th epotentate's home. That was the first time I actually met the prince."

The witness said the acquaintance ripened into love and she was intimate with the dusky potentate several times in December, 1919.

"The potentate visited my home in Chapel street, Mayfair, several times," the witness said, "and when he left for Paris lat ethat month I made severa trips there to see him. Finally we were discovered in his room in a hotel."

Sir John Simon caused a sensation when he began cross-examination by saying:

"I must ask you an intimate and painful question. It is better I do it in writing."

The barrister then showed a slip of paper to the judge who offered to discharge two women jurors if they desired. They chose to remain, however, and the judge handed the paper to the jury with the remark:

"I'm sorry but you will have to read it."

WIDOW OF HARDING IS DEAD

AWAIT WORD OF CHEMIST

Furnace Mystery May Be Partially Cleared.

PREACHER NEAR COLLAPSE

Prosecutor Stays With Family to Investigate.

Report Expected to Determine If Mrs. Sheatsley Breathed After Her Head Entered the Furnace.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—Investigation of the Sheatsley furnace mystery marked time today awaiting three developments:

1—Report from the chemists examining a segment of the victim's aesophagus and a fragment of her lung to determine if possible whether Mrs. Sheatsley breathed after her head entered the furnace.

2—Report of Police Lieutenant Shellenberger and his aides on whether there are any outstanding contradictions in the testimony of Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children.

3—Coroner Joseph Murphy's verdict.

Meanwhile the Lutheran pastor, reported near a collapse from the strain subsequent to the finding of his wife's charred body in the parsonage furnace here last Monday night, his four children, ranging in age from ten to twenty, and Franklin County Prosecutor King and Harry Carson, detective, are in Canton, near where Mrs. Sheatsley's remains were buried yesterday afternoon.

Communicating with his office here early today King said that he and Carson would probably remain in Canton with the minister and his family until Sunday.

The chemists report is to be sealed and may be delivered to King today at Canton.

If it shows that Mrs. Sheatsley inhaled carbon monoxide or flames, the prosecutor may drop his probe entirely and admit that Mrs. Sheatsley committed suicide as the pastor contends.

But if the report indicates that no flames or carbon monoxide fumes were inhaled King will proceed on the assumption that Mrs. Sheatsley was dead before her body entered the fire box and his investigation of the cause of death will be redoubled.

It is a foregone conclusion that Coroner Murphy's verdict will show suicide. He had contended since the first that Mrs. Sheatsley took her own life by crawling in upon the red hot coals of the furnace when she was seized with a sudden mania.

The same belief is expected to be expressed in the report of the city detectives, one of whom, C. Cox, has already said that he went over all the testimony of the minister and his family and found no conflict.

In talking with his assistant over long distance telephone today, Prosecutor King declared that he had turned up "no important new evidence," but that he still believed Mrs. Sheatsley was dead when her body entered the fire box.

"I do not say that she was murdered," King declared. "She may have committed suicide, as the pastor says, but I believe more resolutely than ever that she could not have crawled into that furnace. Someone else must have put her in."

King said that in Canton he had questioned Mrs. Lydia Sponselier, eighty-one, the furnace victim's mother, Mrs. Sponseller's two sons and that he had had additional interviews with Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children

These interviews developed that Clarence Sheatsley, the pastor's sixteen-year-old son who was first to suspect that what he saw in the furnace was his mother's body, found the furnace door slightly ajar.

King said he considered this an important point as he had been unable to understand how Mrs. Sheatsley could have crept into the furnace and pulled the door closed behind her. Previously Clarence testified that the door was shut when he first went to the basement to investigate the odor of burning flesh

From the interview with Mrs Sponseller, the prosecutor learned that she had lived with the Sheatsleys up until last July and that she had never known them to have any domestic troubles

CONTEST FOR JUDGESHIP

F. L. Rain Presents Petition From Fairbury Lawyers for Appointment of W. H. Barnes.

The contest for the judgeship of the eighteenth judicial district is increasing in intensity with time. Four applicants are now in the contest and Governor Bryan has made no decision. Supporters of the contestants desire to be heard or to present petitions on behalf of their favorites, and the governor is disposed to give all interested plenty of time.

The contest is between W. H. Barnes and W. J. Moss of Fairbury. Judge E O. Kretsinger and City Attorney Frank A Dutton of Beatrice. From Beatrice reports do not indicate any united action on the part of the county bar. Dutton's supporters allege the democratic organization in Gage county and Beatrice is very much divided. All the applicants are democrats.

From Jefferson county reports indicate a large following among attorneys in favor of Mr. Barnes. Frank Rain of Fairbury called at the governors' office Friday noon and arranged to meet Governor Bryan in the afternoon to present a petition from all the active attorneys of Fairbury, with one exception, in favor of the appointment of Mr. Barnes. The petition is signed by nine attorneys.

The men presumably are of the I. W. W. variety.

COUNTY DENIES ANY LIABILITY

Allege High School Students Are Themselves Responsible for Any Injuries in Accident on August 13.

The young joy-riders who crashed into the cement bridge on the South Fourteenth street road, August 13, while the road was under construction, owe their injuries, if any, to their own negligence and Lancaster county is not liable for the $34,000 worth of damage suits brought, according to answers filed in the district court by the county attorney.

Five students at the Lincoln high school, Lucile Boomer, Kenneth Davis, Walter Larson, Elizabeth Wilson, Claire Wilson and Don Robb were riding in a car belonging to August Larson, driven by Don Robb, when the accident occurred.

Robb stated that he swerved his car to avoid hitting a pile of dirt placed on the east side of the bridge and sideswiped the west end of the culvert with the rear end of the car, throwing the occupants out of the car into the ditch.

Lucile Boomer sustained compound fractures of both legs and Kenneth Davis sustained a broken jaw in the accident. The others escaped with minor injuries with the exception of the driver who was not injured. The damage suits were filed against the county September 12

SUES PASTOR FOR RIDICULE

COLORED ATTORNEY ASKS FOR $10,000 DAMAGES.

Suit Filed Friday in District Court Alleges Rev. Knight Abused Him Verbally From Pulpit.

Charging that his minister ridiculed him in open meetings of the African Methodist Episcopal church, attacking his ability in his profession and causing him the loss of the love of his fellow church goers and of business, J. H. Lawson, negro attorney, began suit against Rev. M. C. Knight for $10,000 damages, in the district court Friday morning.

Attorney Lawson claims that he is duly licensed by the state in the practice of law, and that he and his wife are members of the A. M. E. church of which the defendant is pastor He charges that the pastor, abusing his position has used it for the purpose of humiliating him and his wife, by sarcastic remarks ridiculing him and his wife from the pulpit in open meetings.

Mr. Lawson further complains that the pastor has attacked his ability as a lawyer and has advised the members of the congregation not to employ Mr. Lawson in legal matters, saying that he is "no good" as a lawyer and that his license has been revoked and he cannot practice, the cumulation of these statements, Mr. Lawson claims, has resulted in the loss of much business.

CHARGE ALCOHOL FRAUD

Wayne Wheeler Declares Six Million Gallons of Liquor Reaches Bootleggers.

WASHINGTON, Nov 21.—The startling charge that six million gallons of government controlled alcohol, one-tenth of all used in this country, have reached the hands of bootleggers so far this year was made by Wayne B Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-Saloon League here today

Wheeler estimated that this alcohol reached the market in the shape of 48,000,000 quarts of gin and whisky of 50 per cent alcoholic content.

"We have traced this alcohol and know where it went" Wheeler said "It was taken out of storehouses on permit by manufacturers who represent themselves as bona-fide users of alcohol but who diverted it to bootleggers"

POLITICIANS LOOK AHEAD

GOSSIP BEING SPREAD FOR A SPRING ELECTION.

Governor Bryan Expected Surely to Head Gasoline Slate—Efforts Made to Keep the Old Guard.

Assuming that Governor Bryan will head the so-called gasoline slate in the spring primaries preliminary to the finals in the city election round-up, pressure is being used to induce members of the so-called old guard to stick to the guns once more.

This pressure centers on Mayor Zehrung, now rounding out his third term. While those close to the mayor know that he has no hankering to remain longer in office, it is rumored that his candidacy for a fourth term is not entirely out of the question.

Commissioner of Finance Dayton also is being bombarded on the street and in his office. He wants to quit but is not being counted out. It is believed possible that he too may yield to pressure. His friends suspect that success or failure of their attempt to change his present state of mind may depend entirely upon his prospective associates in the council.

Commissioner Schroeder is expected to be a candidate because of his interest in certain issues and Commissioner Wright is listed as a certain starter.

Friends of the mayor assume that if he does become a candidate, it will not be for the purpose of opposing Mr. Bryan but rather in the hope of keeping Mr. Dayton in the harness for at least another term. This, however, is outside gossip. Neither the mayor nor Mr. Dayton have indicated that they will be candidates.

Commissioner Cowgill expects to hook up with Governor Bryan and such other candidates as may be slated or acceptable. W. T. Overton, for many years assistant superintendent of streets, has been mentioned as a possible candidate to oppose Mr. Cowgill. Mr. Overton is now in charge of University Place streets. It is known that the veteran road boss has little or no liking for the executive side of council affairs. This, however, was true to some degree of T. J. Hensley, always elected and re-elected until he resigned to become a member of th county board of commissioners.

HEAR NEW VIEW OF PHYSICAL TRAINING

Kiwanians Addressed by Superintendent Lefler in Observance of National Education Week.

"Physical education as we know it today is not calisthenics, not gymnastics, or athletics or child hygiene," Superintendent Lefler of the city schools told Kiwanis club Friday noon. "It is a program designed to meet individual needs, and it may consist of lying in bed, if that is what the individual needs. Its tendency is against specialization and in the direction of participation on the part of everyone. Children in our schools do not conform to the physical education program—it conforms to them.

"We need general education that shall unify us as a people, not specialization that shall differentiate us, and physical training is a vigorous move in this direction."

Localizing his talk, Mr. Lefler cited various factors in physical education, including not only the school gymnasiums, swimming pools and athletic fields but the municipal parks, playgrounds and pools, scout and campfire activities, the Y. M. C A. and Y. W. C. A. and church activities which he said formed the strongest hold of the church on the young people. He bespoke more state parks, and an ideal advancing from play grounds for children to a year around program of recreation for everybody largely at public expense where individuals might realize their best development and leaders be evolved

Mr Lefler's talk, which was the club's observance of education week, was preceded by a short plea for the community chest, by L C Oberlies and a group of songs by Mrs Eula Marshall Brewster Mayor Zehrung asked to speak on parks and playgrounds, explained that in the past two days he had welcomed to Lincoln the highest officers of the Lions and the Elks and in so doing had used up all the language at his command.

M'MULLEN AT THE CAPITOL

RAY OF HOPE FOR DEMOCRATIC APPOINTEES.

New Governor Has Made No Promises and Holds Fitness First—To Name Code Secretaries.

Adam McMullen, governor-elect, was an unexpected visitor at the capitol Friday. His coming was the signal for a panic of fear among appointees who have held office the past year under Governor Bryan and was a source of inspiration and hope for many who seek the warm side of the state pay roll with a cold winter coming on. He was soon surrounded by a group of friends who gathered in the governor's public reception room

The governor-elect called to see Governor Bryan in the executive office.

"Welcome to our sanctum," said Governor Bryan, when he arrived from the executive mansion.

"I want to thank you for that very courteous letter," said Mr. McMullen. "I just arrived in Lincoln and was told at the hotel."

"I'm glad to be of service to you whenever it is within my power," said Governor Bryan.

If the incoming governor expects to make a clean sweep of Bryan appointees, no such intention was indicated in his remarks to reporters.

"I have been in Oklahoma and Chicago attending to private business that has been neglected for a year," said the governor-elect. "It is almost one year since the campaign for governor really commenced. Now that the election is over I can say that I have not made one single promise to any person for appointment to office I have not made any selections. During the campaign I jotted down the names of several persons I met with a view to considering them for appointment, but in no case do these persons know I have them in mind. Some of my appointments may seem strange when they are made, but I expect to use my best judgment."

"If I think an appointee who is a democrat is doing good work, there is no reason why I should not reappoint him," said Mr. Mullen, when asked if he intended to appoint republicans only.

"Of course I intend to give the preference to republicans, but politics should not outweigh a man's fitness. However, it may be possible to find enough well qualified republicans to fill most of the places at the governor's disposal At least I shall hope so."

"It will be all right with me if Governor Bryan moves first into the new capitol," said the governor-elect when asked about his desire to occupy the new quarters [illegible] He said the [illegible] governor's mansion would be a [illegible] of Governor and Mrs. Bryan. ought to be chosen to perform the work. I have no plans yet to announce in regard to the future conduct of these departments, but it is my present intention to appoint secretaries for each of the six code departments."

The governor-elect said he would remain in Lincoln for a reunion and banquet of Scottish Rite Masons, an organization of which he has been a member for twenty-two years. His attention to private business the past few weeks has given him no rest and his intention to take a vacation following the campaign has hardly been carried out.

Mr. McMullen was asked if he had oil holdings to draw him to Tulsa, Okla., on private business and whether or not the Bryan filling station would remain open after he becomes governor.

"I will have to plead guilty to ignorance about the fate of the station at this time," he said.

LANCASTER COUNTY PAST MIDDLE MARK

Over Half of $200,000 Allotment in Cotner College Crusade Subscribed Frday—Omaha Contributes.

Lancaster county is past the half-way mark in contributions to the million dollar endowment for Cotner college, according to returns reported at the Cotner Crusaders luncheon at the Lindell hotel Friday noon. A total of $101,045.50 had been contributed to the $200,000 allotment at that time. In addition to this fund, $5,000 has been received from Douglas county and $25,000 fro mout in the state, bringing the total to $131,045 50.

E. C. Lytton, business manager and endowment crusade director of Drake university at Des Moines, was the speaker at the noon meeting Friday.

"You are engaged in the greatest work in the world," he said. "It is a great business enterprise which promotes the business side of the college and which also promotes Christianity." The people of Drake university are very much interested in the Cotner crusade, he stated, and are anxious to help in every way. In telling of the work of Drake, which is one of the Christian church colleges, he said they now have the largest enrollment in their history Over 2,000 students are now enrolled An endowment crusade for a million dollars will soon be started at that place because at present, too large a part of the budget has to be met by the tuitions of the students

FORMER MISTRESS OF WHITE HOUSE PASSES

Mrs. Florence Kling Harding Dies Friday at Marion, O.

IN HER SIXTY-FOURTH YEAR

Weakened by Shock of Her Husband's Death.

WAS ADMIRED BY COUNTRY

Reports of Last Illness Draw Same Interest as Her Attack Two Years Ago.

MARION, O., Nov. 21.—The body of Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, who died today at White Oaks farm, probably will be placed beside that of her husband, the late President Harding, in the receiving valut at Marion cemetery.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m., at the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church of which Mrs. Harding had been a member since girlhood.

Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of the Epworth church, and Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church, will officiate at the services.

Mrs. Harding's body was taken from White Oaks farm today to the home of Mrs. Frank J. Longshore, a niece.

Telegrams notifying them of Mrs. Harding's death were sent today to President Coolidge and all members of his cabinet by George B. Christian and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer.

MARION, O., Nov. 21—Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of the late president, died today.

Weakened by the shock of her husband's death and the ordeal of his public funeral a year and a half ago, Mrs. Harding was unable to throw off the recurrence of the malady which had brought her to the very gates of death in 1922 at the white house.

She became very seriously ill late in October. Save for brief intervals of improvement, her strength ebbed gradually until the end.

Mrs. Harding died at 8:55 a. m. at White Oaks farm.

With her when the end came were her brother, Clifford Kling, of Florida, Mrs. Charles E. Sawyer, widow of Pesident Hading's personal physician, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer and George B. Christian, former secretary to the late president.

Dr. Sawyer Weeps.

Dr. Sawyer who had been with Mrs. Harding almost constantly during her long illness, announced her death. His eyes were filled with tears as he said simply:

"She has died. She went peacefully and quietly. I may have a formal statement later."

Mrs. Harding passed into a coma yesterday morning and early today she was unconscious.

She was ill two weeks before gravity of her condition became known outside White Oaks, the sanitorium and country estate of the Sawyers.

Then on the morning of November 3, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, after a consultation with Dr. J. C. Wood, Cleveland abdominal specialist, issued a bulletin describing her condition as "alarming."

Immediately messages of sympathy and hope for a rapid recovery began pouring in from all parts of the country.

The nation which so admired the fortitude with which Mrs. Harding bore up under the many dramatic chapters in her career, as first lady of the land was quick to send words of good cheer to her bedside.

Probably no other woman in the history of American national life ever held so securely, the admiration of the country as did Mrs. Harding

Reports of her last illness drew almost the same universal interest as those during the attack which she suffered two years ago in Washington

Brave But Losing Fight.

Behind the tragedy of her death is the story of a brave but losing fight against the malady, which despite the most skillful attention has reappeared in virulent form at critical times in Mrs. Harding's life for the last twenty years.

Its first appearance in serious form interrupted for a time the idyllic business partnership which the Hardings had formed on the Marion Star.

It was in the days when Warren Harding was his own editor, reporter and business manager that illness forced Mrs. Harding to give up her place on the paper as manager of circulation.

NORRIS IS DETERMINED

PROPOSES TO CONTINUE INSURGENCY IN SENATE.

Can't Understand Why Nebraskans Elected Him and Coolidge or Why Progressives Shy in Total Votes.

Senator George W. Norris is back in Washington untamed in his opposition to the policies of Coolidge, says Robert Black, Washington correspondent of the World-Herald, in a dispatch to his paper. He says he is determined to maintain his "consistent insurgency" against the present leadership of his party. Mr. Black says:

The Nebraska senator was emphatic in stating that the Coolidge landslide would not change his political views. He said he would continue to fight for what he believed was right, and if this necessitated his attacking President Coolidge as it has in the past he would do it.

The senator could not explain the overwhelming landslide for Coolidge, but frankly admitted he had not expected it.

"I was surprised at the tremendous vote Coolidge polled both in Nebraska and thruout the country," he declared. "I believed that the progressive cause would have more supporters, and I do not know why it did not. I cannot honestly explain the Coolidge landslide."

Neither could Senator Norris explain how the people of Nebraska voted for both the president and himself.

"The president and I, as every one knows, have disagreed on practically every major issue, yet the voters of Nebraska returned us both to office. I cannot understand it."

Senator Norris declared there was an improvement in business and agricultural condition in Nebraska, but that the farmer was still suffering from his fundamental ills, and he believed that only sound legislation could permanently bring farm relief.

"I do not see any hope of passing any real farm legislation during the short session convening next month," he said "The McNary-Haugen bill has already been defeated in the house and there is no chance to pass my bill I believe some legislation, however, must be passed and the president, with a good working majority in his new congress, should call a special session for this purpose"

The senator said he will go to Montana and assist in the defense of Senator Wheeler when he comes up for trial in December, if he is able to leave Washington at that time

PLAN TO PROTEST LANGLEY RELEASE

Cortland Citizens Oppose Pardon for Pfeiffer, Convicted of Shooting Justice of the Peace to Death.

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 21.—Residents of Cortland and vicinity will make a protest against the granting of the application of Orlando Langley, convicted of the murder of Judge Christian H. Pfeiffer, for a pardon. Langley's application for a commutation of his twenty-year sentence will come up for hearing before the state board of pardons December 9.

Pfeiffer, serving as justice of the peace for Highland township, was alleged to have been shot down by Langley one evening in August, 1919, a few hours after a case in which Langley had been charged with a violation of the liquor laws of the state was dismissed by the judge. After having had trouble with a Cortland resident, Langley, who was engaged in farming near that village, drove to his home and later returned to the village under the supposed influence of liquor. In the meantime, five young men had been deputized by the justice of the peace to place Langley under arrest, and when they attempted to do so a gun battle ensued, in which Langley was wounded.

He is alleged to have gone from the scene of the battle to the store in which Judge Pfeiffer was employed, and shot down the justice, without warning.

Following the shooting Langley was roughly handled by Cortland residents, the advice of cooler heads saving him from lynching. He was tried before Judge L. M. Pemberton in district court in February, 1920, and found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to serve twenty years in the penitentary. He is a man about sixty years of age and according to the petition filed in his behalf, is not in good health at the present time. He has a family of a wife and eleven children, his wife at the present time, being employed as a chicken picker in the Swift plant in this city.

Judge Pfeiffer was a leader in church circles in Cortland, and the feeling against Langley as a result of the murder has not as yet abated. County Attorney Matoon announced that he will back up townsmen in the fight opposing the release of Langley, who has been on the prison farm for some time. He has served six years of his sentence.

POURS GASOLINE IN LAMP

Flaming Wick Ignites Explosive Mistaken for Kerosene—Two Seriously Hurt.

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 21.—James Johnson and Bert Moroney, workmen employed by Gage county on construction work on the Cornhusker highway northwest of Wymore, were seriously injured Thursday evening at the road camp about three miles west of Blue Springs, when gasoline was mistaken for kerosene and an attempt was made to fill a lamp bowl with the gas while the lamp was lighted.

An explosion followed in which Johnson, who was pouring the gas, was severely burned about the hands, arms and face, and he was rushed to a Beatrice hospital. Moroney, who was farther away from the lamp, was less seriously burned, his injuries being received mostly when he attempted to put out the fire and save his companion. He was brought to Dr. Peters of Wymore for treatment.

Fire Loss $2,500 on Farm.

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 21.—A loss estimated at over $2,500 was caused by fire on the Tom Littlebridge farm in the Morrowville, Kas., vicinity, just south of here Thursday evening. The fire is supposed to have started from a short circuit in the wiring or ignition system of an Overland automobile, which was in a shed adjoining the burned barn, the car having been last used about six hours previous to the discovery of flames which issued from where the car was stored.

The frame barn, a large structure built five years ago, together with about fifteen tons of hay, a small quantity of grain, seventy-five chickens, and the auto shed and car were all burned. The fire broke out just about dusk and the chickens had just gone to roost in time to be caught in the fire. No one was at home on the farm at the time except Mrs. Littlebridge and two small children.

CONSCIENCE FUND GAINS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The American conscience has been stirred by the "wee small voice" with increasing frequency, and affect since the world war and since the income tax was imposed. The treasury department, where money from repentant defrauders eventually finds its way, not for the moment suggesting that either one of three events had anything to do with the increase, merely points out to the mounting "Conscience Fund" total. A dirty, wrinkled letter, postmarked Santa Cruz, California, yesterday brought $170 and increased the sum to approximately $580,000 since 1811 when a $5 note started the "fund." The $100,000 increase of recent years gives rise to the belief that the war or the income tax amendment was the stimulus.

Red Cloud—Arrangements are being made here for a community Christmas celebration. A large tree is to be placed at one of the downtown street intersections and each business house will have a tree in front of their store. A prize will be given for the best decorated tree.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES.

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

A New Type in Politics.

New York Times: Mr. Coolidge's political resourcefulness was shown by the way in which he impressed himself upon the country. He did it in an original fashion. It is still true that the world is ruled by imagination, and President Coolidge undoubtedly made a strong appeal to the imagination of the American people. But it was along novel lines. He never sought to set himself up as a hero or a romantic figure. Rather it was the dutiful doer of the day's work: the calm man of iron industry; the executive who labored for economy and order in government; the president who worked for a reduction in public expenditures, and also managed to stand before the eyes of his fellow-citizens as the man who was striving to save their money and to cut down their individual taxes; who illustrated the humdrum but indispensable virtues of efficient administration—in these guises Mr. Coolidge not only compelled recognition as the chief asset of the republican party, but more and more won a hold upon the plain and steady-going masses of the people.

His success is that of a new type in our national politics. He has shown that leadership may fulfill itself in many ways, some of them unexpected. Perhaps the strategic moment had come for such a victor. The nation had had a series of forceful and glittering personalities at the head of affairs. Possibly the time had come to play upon other strings of popular sentiment. Mr. Coolidge has certainly done it, and that without departing from the character in which he had been known for years. It cannot be denied that he has had aid from a kind fate. The traditional "Coolidge luck" has been abundantly seen in the course of this year's campaign. The bounty of nature stilled discontent in the republican states of the west and northwest faster than LaFollette could stir it up. But when all is said, it has to be admitted that President Coolidge showed great political sagacity in sticking thruout to the role in which he had cast himself. It is something to have demonstrated that the American people will rise to a leader who puts work above talk, as well as to rhetoricians stalking back and forth on the windy plains of Troy, or to fighters forever waving swords and gesticulating.

The hope of the country is that Mr. Coolidge, after the mandate given him in his own name, will hereafter be every inch a president. No one will expect to see him boast or bluster, but in his quiet way the people will desire him to assume the full right and powers of leadership. With the great honor done him a great responsibility has been laid upon him. That he may rise fully level with it and make of his administration a positive source of good for the United States, and of courage and help in solving those world problems from which this nation cannot shake itself apart, will be the earnest wish today of all patriotic Americans.

Loftier Heights.

The second officer was upbraiding an able seaman for his bibulous habits. "Just think, Tappin," he said, "if it wasn't for your weakness for rum you might have been a second officer like me, instead of just a sailor before the mast."

"Stow that stuff!" answered Tappin gruffly. "When I'm drunk I'm an admiral."

ADDITIONS TO PARK ZOO

Two Virginia Deer Initiated Into Order of Nibblers of Dry Pasture.

Two Virginia deer fawns from Michigan have been added to the permanent animal household in the city park zoo. They were initiated Thursday into the order of the nibblers of the pasture land. Both are females and each gives her age as eight months. This boosts the deer population to ten, according to Park Boss Edinborough.

There are Japanese Siki (no relation to Batting Sike), white fallow and Virginia. Age diminished the herd, the average life being around nine years.

Back to Two Parties.

New York Times: In overwhelming defeat, the democratic party is nevertheless stronger than it looks. If it could point only to the melancholy fringe of southern states, its future might be despaired of. But it has many scattered representatives in the house from northern and western states, with an occasional United States senator or a governor. Best of all in the way of promise of continued life, is the fact that it has virtually got rid of a menace to its very existence. An almost avowed aim of the LaFollette movement was to destroy the democratic party. In its zeal to commit murder the third party really committed suicide. Like that one of the Medici family who, in his furious strokes at an enemy, stabbed himself Senator LaFollette has hurt himself more than the democratic party with the daggers that he spoke.

Here we have one of the great gains of Tuesday's election. It largely removed the peril that the group system in congress would drive out the two-party system. To the latter the country is in a fair way to get back soon. Weakened and repulsed as it was in the presidential election, the democratic partystill has a respectable strength in congress, and is in a position there and thruout the country quickly to become a responsible party of the opposition. Instead of breaking up the old two-party system, LaFollette has strengthened it and brought its full return nearer. For this gift of his, undesigned tho it was, to the American people he deserves a vote of thanks—tho he would scorn and scorify anyone who offered it to him.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: My husband is neglecting me for another woman. We have been married three years. I suppose I should have known better than to marry a handsome man, for I'm not very easy to look at myself, but he seemed to love me so much and I surely adore him.

He works in a big office, somewhat similar to The Journal office, I imagine, with lots of men and women. Of course, in every office, you know there is some girl who can't leave the men alone. Probably she doesn't care for them particularly, but she just has to have admiration and attention. So maybe she concentrates on a married man.

I used to fear before I was married that something of the sort might happen, but I put it all down to silly jealousy and married him, anyway. We have two darling children and that is what hurts most—that he can't be true to his family. He is spending money on her, too, which of course we need for our home. There are several more things I would like about the home, like a vacuum cleaner and an electric washer, but so far I have not seen where we could economize to get them. Somewhat Sorry.

A. You should know your husband better than anyone else and what tactics to employ. You won him away from all the other girls once. No doubt you can do it again.

What works with one man will not with another. One man will behave if he is scorned and ignored. Another will come to time if he thinks his wife is becoming too popular. One will melt to her tears, while another will go out, slamming the door, and stay away all the evening, if she sheds a briny drop or two.

When a man is infatuated with a woman, there is little one can do to distract his attention. The fortunate thing is, he usually grows tired of the other woman and comes back in the end to his wife and family.

Pray for tact and wisdom and put a guard on your speech.

Meantime, if he is spending too much, buy your washing machine or vac and charge it up to him. At least threaten to.

And don't forget to cook him the loveliest dinners in the world and have your home more comfortable than that of the "other woman."

Dear Mary Gordon: Here goes for another letter and I hope it does not see the waste basket till after you have read it and I hope to see it in print. In regard to the letter you received some time ago from a girl that signed her name as the old fashioned girl of 21, I will say to her that I am sorry and hope some time to see in the paper where the man that caused her downfall is put in the pen before he commits any more crime. As for myself I am one that stays at home and read my paper and enjoy being home with my daughter, but we go up town of a Saturday night but come home early. So kind friend, just pass up the father of your child as you would a tramp and don't even allow him to come and see the child either or he might try the same thing over. I have respect for any woman and treat them the same as a lady should be treated. I guess that is the reason that I am not married again as I see enough on the streets to make me sick and to think the way some women act is awful in my mind so let me see what you think of my letter thru the paper please.—W. L. C.

Apologetic Ann.

Her name isn't Ann, but certainly she is apologetic, so I have coined that alliterative title for her. If I happen in on her early in the morning before her house is put to rights she is so apologetic over the scattered newspapers and the wilted flowers that she can scarcely listen to what I have come to say.

When I eat lunch at her house she points out for me the fact that her silver service is not complete, and, that her salad dressing is a failure today. She appears in a new dress, and, when (being an old friend) I exclaim over it, she hastens to tell me that while the style may be all right the material is really quite poor.

I know she is extremely well read, but when I ask her, just to make conversation, whether she likes Edna Millay's sonnets, she is profuse in apologetic explanations as to why she has never read them. She can not simply say no and risk my opinion of her culture.

She makes apologies and explanations to me as to why her husband takes the 8:10 instead of the 9:10, why she doesn't learn to drive a car, why she keeps her children in this school instead of that, why she goes to the mountains rather than to the seashore.

Quite likely I don't need to describe Apologetic Ann further. You know her yourself. Perhaps you are her twin sister.

If you will observe closely you will find that many people apologize for every conceivable reason, and for no reason at all.

What is an apology, really? My dictionary says that it is an "acknowledgment, as of error, offense, or incivility;" and, it continues, "he who offers an apology admits himself, at least technically and seemingly, in the wrong."

If a visitor finds your porch a litter of toys and children's junk, why apologize? By doing so, you "acknowledge error," and "admit yourself in the wrong." You don't really mean to do either. Very likely, instead of being in the wrong, you are very much in the right: a hot afternoon, irritable children, and a clean porch—or a comfortable afternoon for busy children on a littered porch. If your caller has a large house, no children, and keeps servants, it may require a superhuman effort not to explain and apologize, but remember that in doing so you imply a shortcoming on your part.

We all know Apologetic Ann's opposite. She is the woman who wears clothes that are not becoming, yet with such assurance that we feel a certain envy of her.

When athletes offer excuses we at once set them down as poor sports. Are we not equally poor sports when we undertake to explain our actions, our family, or our environment.—Woman's Home Companion.

MILLIONAIRES' SONS START AS CLERKS

Charles H. Sabin, jr., son of the internationally known banker, and Raymond Mellen, whose father is president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, have begun their business careers as clerks in the department store of W. M. Whitney & Co., Albany, N. Y.

The selection of this store as a training ground in business was made thru Sabin's mother. Mrs. Sabin, a member of the New York state republican committee, is a daughter of the late William M. Whitney, founder of the store. The fathers of the boys began their own careers humbly, but each in a business they stuck to for life, and in which they became famous. Charles H. Sabin started as a clerk in the National Commercial bank in Albany. Charles Senger Mellen began as a minor railroad executive thirty years ago.

The two boys are beginning work after finishing an eleven months' tour of Europe.—P. & A.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Of all known drugs, cresote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

No Need to Tolerate Gray Hair any Longer

You Can Restore the Former Shade with Kolor-Bak

The clean, colorless liquid, known as Kolor-Bak, has enabled thousands of men and women to take years from their appearance by restoring the original shade to their gray hair.

The following is a letter typical of many written in praise of this remarkable preparation.

"Only a short time ago my hair was quite gray and becoming grayer. It was falling out. My scalp itched and dandruff appeared.

"Only a few applications of Kolor-Bak stopped the itching and dandruff. My hair soon stopped coming out. Most wonderful of all, however, is that my hair is again its original shade. I look ten years younger. No wonder I'm so thankful for Kolor-Bak."

Authorities state that hair turns gray when for any reason it fails to receive the proper amount of coloring matter from the cells in the scalp. No matter what the cause of the grayness, it is amazing to see how quickly Kolor-Bak brings back the former shade. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Kolor-Bak is not sticky, greasy, mussy or unpleasant to use. It is just a clean, colorless liquid containing ingredients known to be beneficial to hair and scalp—as easy to use as water. Results often appear in a week.

It not only restores the former shade to the hair; it banishes dandruff, prevents itching of the scalp and stops falling of the hair.

No samples of your hair required no tests necessary—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly

Joyful Recovery.

I know that you will be glad to hear that the reason for my not ordering further treatment is that you have entirely cured my goitre. Thus writes Grace Mayers of Conemaugh, Pa. The enlargement has entirely disappeared and I am feeling fine, so do not believe that further treatment is necessary. Please accept my sincere thanks for the great service you have done me.

I cannot tell you how happy I am at being rid of that ugly old goitre and I give you and your wonderful treatment all the praise. I shall never let an opportunity pass to speak a good word for you. Sincerely yours—MISS LIZZIE THOMAS, South Boston, Va.

No More Treatment.

I am happy to write you that I do not think I need further treatment. My goitre has entirely disappeared and I am feeling so good in every way that I feel entirely safe in dropping the treatment. You have a wonderful treatment, and I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me, not only as regards the goitre but in general health. I am in better health now than I have been for a long time. God bless you and your wonderful treatment. Again thanking you, I am—MISS ODELIA ROSENBAUM.

I am very glad to write that I believe my goitre is cured. There is no longer any swelling and as the disagreeable symptoms and sensations have all disappeared and I am in such fine general health, I feel that I can safely discontinue the treatment. I feel stronger and weigh more than I have in years.

I have told a great many about your treatment and shall not miss an opportunity to recommend it to those who are suffering from that disfiguring and health-destroying disease.

Again thanking you for the great good your treatment has done me, and wishing you continued success in your work, I am, Sincerely yours—MRS. MARTHA COE, Gibsonville, N. C.

Proud of Her Neck.

I am so happy to write you that my goitre is cured. I am so happy I can not find words to express my gratitude to you for (curing me) taking that unsightly tumor off my neck. I am like a child with a new toy. I want every one to see it and know about it. I shall never cease recommending your wonderful treatment to all I see with goitre. It went away so fast the last week that I couldn't believe my eyes and I was so happy that I thanked God over and over again that I was told of your wonderful treatment.

I thank you a hundred times for the great service you have rendered me and know you will rejoice with me when you hear of your victory over my very stubborn case.—MISS E. M. S.

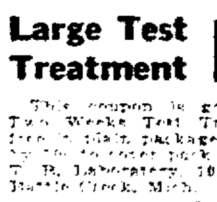

To Spread the News.

I cannot thank you enough for what your treatment did for me. It is the most wonderful goitre medicine in the world, and I will do all I can to spread the good news to goitre sufferers I may meet and hear of. You have cured my goitre and I want others to know where they can be cured also. Goitre is a very humiliating malady and no woman should put off having it attended to.

Again thanking you for the great service you have rendered me, I am—MISS NETTIE DILLINE, Stroudsburg, Pa.

The Complex Life.

(Copyright by Jack London and by the MacMillan Company. Reprinted exclusively thru the North American Newspaper Alliance).

The groom escaped into the stables, and White Fang backed away before Collie's wicked teeth or presented his shoulder to them and circled round and round. But Collie did not give over, as was her wont, after a decent interval of chastisement. On the contrary, she grew more excited and angry every moment, until, in the end, White Fang flung dignity to the winds and frankly fled away from her across the fields.

"He'll learn to leave chickens alone," the master said. "But I can't give him the lesson until I catch him in the act."

Two nights later came the act, but on a more generous scale than the master had anticipated. White Fang had observed closely the chicken yards and the habits of the chickens. In the night-time, after they had gone to roost, he climbed to the top of a pile of newly hauled lumber. From there he gained the roof of a chicken house, passed over the ridgepole and dropped to the ground inside. A moment later he was inside the house, and the slaughter began.

In the morning, when the master came out on to the porch, fifty white Leghorn hens, laid out in a row by the groom, greeted his eyes. He whistled to himself, softly, first with surprise, and then, at the end, with admiration. His eyes were likewise greeted by White Fang, but about the latter there were no signs of shame nor guilt. He carried himself with pride, as tho, forsooth, he had achieved a deed praiseworthy and meritorious. There was about him no consciousness of sin. The master's lips tightened as he faced the disagreeable task. Then he talked harshly to the unwitting culprit, and in his voice there was nothing but godlike wrath. Also, he held White Fang's nose down to the slain hens, and at the same time cuffed him soundly.

White Fang never raided a chicken-roost again. It was against the law, and he had learned it. Then the master took him into the chicken yards. White Fang's natural impulse, when he saw the live food fluttering about him and under his very nose, was to spring upon it. He obeyed the impulse, but was checked by the master's voice. They continued in the yards for half an hour. Time and again the impulse surged over White Fang, and each time, as he yielded to it, he was checked by the master's voice. Thus it was he learned the law, and ere he left the domain of the chickens, he had learned to ignore their existence.

"You can never cure a chicken-killer," Judge Scott shook his head sadly at the luncheon table, when his son narrated the lesson he had given White Fang. "Once they've got the habit and the taste of blood....." Again he shook his head sadly.

But Weeden Scott did not agree with his father.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," he challenged finally. "I'll lock White Fang in with the chickens all afternoon."

"But think of the chickens," objected the judge.

"And furthermore," the son went on, "for every chicken he kills, I'll pay you a dollar gold coin of the realm."

"But you should penalize father, too," interposed Beth.

Her sister seconded her, and a chorus of approval arose from around the table. Judge Scott nodded his head in agreement.

"All right." Weedon Scott pondered for a moment, "And if, at the end of the afternoon White Fang hasn't harmed a chicken, for every ten minutes of the time he has spent in the yard, you will have to say to him, gravely and with deliberation, just as if you were sitting on the bench and solemly passing judgment, 'White Fang, you are smarter than I thought.'"

From hidden points of vantage the family watched the performance. But it was a fizzle. Locked in the yard and there deserted by the master, White Fang lay down and went to sleep. Once he got up and walked over to the trough for a drink of water. The chickens he calmly ignored. So far as he was concerned they did not exist. At four o'clock he executed a running leap, gained the roof of the chicken house and leaped to the ground outside, whence he sauntered gravely to the house. He had learned the law. And on the porch, before the delighted family, Judge Scott, face to face with White Fang, said slowly and solemnly, sixteen times, "White Fang, you are smarter than I thought."

But it was the multiplicity of laws that befuddled. White Fang and often brought him to disgrace. He had to learn that he must not touch the chickens that belonged to other gods. Then there were cats, and rabbits, and turkeys; all these he must let alone. In fact, when he had but partly learned the law, his impression was that he must leave all live things alone. Out in the back pasture, a quail could flutter up under his nose unharmed. All tense and trembling with eagerness and desire, he mastered his instinct and stood still. He was obeying the will of the gods.

And then, one day, again out in the back pasture, he saw Dick start a jackrabbit and run it. The master himself was looking on and did not interfere. Nay, he encouraged White Fang to join in the chase. And thus he learned that there was no taboo on jackrabbits. In the end he worked out the complete law. Between him and all domestic animals there must be no hostilities. If not amity, at least neutrality must obtain. But the other animals, the squirrels, and quail, and cottontails, were creatures of the wild who had never yielded allegiance to man. They were the lawful prey of the dog. It was only the tame that the gods protected, and between the tame deadly strife was not permitted. The gods held the power of life and death over their subjects, and the gods were jealous of their power.

Life was complex in the Santa Clara valley after the simplicities of the northland. And the chief thing demanded by these intricacies of civilization was control, restraint—a poise of self that was as delicate as the fluttering of gossamer wings and at the same time as rigid as steel. Life had a thousand faces, and White Fang found he must meet them all—thus, when he went to town, in to San Jose, running behind the carriage or loafing about the streets, when the carriage stopped. Life flowed past him, deep and wide and varied, continually impinging upon his senses, demanding of him instant and endless adjustments and the correspondences, and compelling him, almost always, to suppress his natural impulses.

There were butcher shops where meat hung within reach. This meat he must not touch. There were cats at the houses the master visited that must be let alone. And there were dogs everywhere that snarled at him and that he must not attack. And then, on the crowded sidewalks, there were persons innumerable whose attention he attracted. They would stop and look at him, point him out to one another, examine him, talk to him, and, worst of all, pat him. And these perilous contacts from all these strange hands he must endure. Yet this endurance he achieved. Furthermore, he got over being awkward and self conscious. In a lofty way he received the attentions of the multitudes of strange gods. With condescension he accepted their condescension. On the other hand, there was something about him that prevented great familiarity. They patted him on the head and passed on, contented and pleased with their own daring.

But it was not all easy for White Fang. Running behind the carriage in the outskirts of San Jose, he encountered certain small boys who made a practice of flinging stones at him. Yet he knew it was not permitted him to pursue and drag them down. Here he was compelled to violate his instinct of self-preservation, and violate it he did, for he was becoming tame and qualifying himself for civilization.

Nevertheless, White Fang was not quite satisfied with the arrangement. He had no abstract ideas about justice and fair play. But there is a certain sense of equity that resides in life, and it was this sense in him that resented the unfairness of his being permitted no defense against the stone throwers. He forgot that in the covenant entered into between him and the gods they were pledged to care for him and defend him. But one day the master sprang from the carriage, whip in hand, and gave the stone throwers a thrashing. After that they threw stones no more, and White Fang understood and was satisfied.

One other experience of similar nature was his. On the way to town, hanging around the saloon at the cross-roads, were three dogs that made a practice of rushing out upon him when he went by. Knowing his dadly method of fighting, the master had never ceased impressing upon White Fang the law that he must not fight. As a result, having learned the lesson well, White Fang was hard put whenever he passed the cross-roads saloon. After the first rush, each time, his snarl kept the three dogs at a distance, but they trailed along behind, yelping and bickering and insulting him. This endured for some time. The men at the saloon even urged the dogs on to attack White Fang. One day they openly sicked the dogs on him. The master stopped the carriage.

"Go to it," he said to White Fang.

But White Fang could not believe. He looked at the master, and he looked at the dogs. Then he looked back eagerly and questionably at the master.

The master nodded his head. "Go to them, old fellow. Eat them up."

White Fang no longer hesitated. He turned and leaped silently among his enemies. All three faced him. There was a great snarling and growling, a clashing of teeth and a flurry of bodies. The dust of the road arose in a cloud and screened the battle. But at the end of several minutes two dogs were struggling in the dirt and the third was in full flight. He leaped a ditch, went thru a rail fence, and fled across a field. White Fang followed, sliding over the ground in wolf fashion and with wolf speed, swiftly and without noise, and in the centre of the field he dragged down and slew the dog.

With this triple killing his main troubles with dogs ceased. The word went up and down the valley, men saw to it that their dogs did not molest the fighting wolf.

PEGGY MAKES THE ACQUAINTANCE OF A QUEER LITTLE MOUSE.

PEGGY hid behind a stump and watched the funny little animal that was chasing a cricket.

"Oh, come on out!" laughed a shrill voice, "I see you behind that stump, I hope you are not afraid of me," and the wee animal flipped his short thick tail through the air and wiggled his whiskers at Peggy.

"Come on out! I'm a mouse but I'll not nibble your heels. You're a friend of Happy Giggles and Squeedee for I saw you with them the other day. And a friend of theirs is a friend of mine."

"Are you speaking to me?" questioned Peggy in a soft voice almost a whisper.

"Of course I am," laughed the wee mouse. "I hope you don't think I'm chatting with myself. I'm Mr. Grasshopper Mouse, if you please. At least that's what they—"

"Grasshopper Mouse!" Peggy exclaimed coming out from her hiding place. "Why what a funny, funny name. Do you eat grasshoppers? Is that why they call you Grasshopper Mouse?"

"I never did know," chuckled Mr. Grasshopper Mouse, "but that's what they call me in this part of the country. Do they call you Peg because you to eat pegs?"

This amused Peggy and she laughed merrily and Mr. Grasshopper Mouse joined in.

"Well, it's true I am very fond of grasshoppers, beetles, lizards, frogs, and even scorpions. Why in some parts of the country where scorpions are plenty they call me a scorpion mouse," squeaked the owner of the short thick tail. "Haven't you ever seen me before?"

"Are you speaking to me?"

and he turned around so Peggy could see his beautiful yellowish-brown coat and lovely white vest. On his feet he wore little white fur boots.

"Doesn't my suit look like velvet?" he asked proudly. "I'd like a longer, slimmer tail if I could have it, but maybe it's better as it is. In case of danger it doesn't take quite such a big hole to hide in. If I had a long tail it probably would be seen quicker."

"I don't know," mused Peggy. "But I rather like your short thick tail."

"You don't look so much like a real mouse. Do you live around here, Mr. Grasshopper Mouse?"

"Indeed I do," replied Mr. Grasshopper Mouse with a twitch of his pretty head, "over in a burrow near the old woods.

"When Grasshopper Mice can't find a deserted burrow of some kind they have to dig their houses in the dirt. But luck was with Mama Grasshopper Mouse and me this time. We found an old burrow and it has made us a very nice home. Won't you come on home and see my—"

Just then Gyp, Peggy's little wooly dog bounded up the road and like a flash of lightning Mr. Grasshopper Mouse shot out of sight.

Peggy didn't know whether to be mad or laugh. So she patted Gyp's head and laughed, and ran off to play hoping that some day in her travels through the woods she would meet Mama Grasshopper Mouse and her family.

FOR THE GIRL IN HER TEENS

Coats and Frocks That Match Are Now Very Smart

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

THE idea of matching the coat and frock is one which finds ready favor with the smart woman. It solves so many problems of, "What shall I wear?" And it not only solves such problems, but it insures smartness at all times, for there is truly a finished effect about the frock and coat costume which can be achieved in no other way.

This is true for the girl in her teens, as well as for the older woman. The matching outfit is so youthful in effect that it is desirable for any age. This is indeed an age when the woman past her teens may wear anything that the debutante may wear.

The chic little outfit shown above is developed in homespun. The material is a lovely soft tan and the trimming is of tan homespun striped with brown.

The coat is finished with a graceful scarf collar, and the stripes set on at the sides allow for tiny inset pockets at their tops. The frock carries out the same vertical band trimming, which is a smart way of imparting slenderness to the figure. Note that utter simplicity of line is the keynote of both garments.

YOUR HEALTH

Why Meningitis Varies in Its Victims and Causes

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

ALL the cavities of the body are lined with membranes, thin and delicate and rich in blood-vessels. There is a marked similarity in the nature and appearance of all such lining membranes, but each is given its own particular name.

The coverings of the brain are called the "meningeal membranes," or, simply, the "meninges." This part of the body, even though it is hidden away under the skull, is liable to irritation and disease.

Inflammation of the meninges is called "meningitis." It is rarely a primary ailment, but it is likely to follow a disturbance in some other part of the body.

In the bad attacks of meningitis, pus may form after the inflammatory process has continued for a time. When this occurs, the condition is called "purulent" or "suppurative meningitis."

One of the causes for this form of the disease is pus formation in the middle ear. This is what makes earache a serious symptom. It indicates inflammation in that organ, with the danger of suppuration and extension to the coverings of the brain.

In tuberculosis and in certain blood diseases, there may be meningitis following or accompanying the original ailment. Sometimes, too, we have to deal with meningitis in epidemic form.

It is not uncommon to have meningeal complication in influenza, scarlet fever and other infectious diseases. The germs or poisons causative of, or resulting from these attacks are likely to sneak around the system, seeking some delicate tissues for further destructive work.

The symptoms of meningitis vary greatly with the form of the attack and the nature of the victim.

Fortunately, however, scientists have made such progress that with proper medical care and careful nursing, there is every hope of recovery in most cases of meningitis.

In meningitis as in all other diseases, when convalescence begins the patient should be given all the fresh air and sunshine possible. Arrange a bed on the sleeping-porch, or if you do not have one, improvise a sleeping-porch by the use of open windows and screens.

Remember the necessity of keeping the patient cheerful and hopeful. A discouraged patient never gets well.

How to Beautify Your Back by Doing an Easy Exercise

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

THE beauty advantages of a straight, slim back are many. Of course, one thinks of the evening decolletage immediately. But, to tell the truth, a beautiful back plays an important part in the general appearance, whether one is garbed in evening clothes or not.

Of course, the low-cut dinner gown reveals the curves of the back in all their beauty. And when the gown follows the deep V at the back so much in vogue, the texture of the skin plays a very important part.

The skin of your back needs the same kind of care and consideration that you lavish on the skin of your face. Sometimes the back becomes mottled with tiny, unattractive bumps, the same kind that mar the complexion of the face if one grows careless in diet.

You can cure this back ailment in the same way you can cure a similar ailment of the face—simply by drinking plenty of water and by eating plenty of green vegetables.

If you do not don evening clothes very frequently, do not let this fact keep you from examining your back carefully in the mirror and making every effort possible to keep it as smooth and soft and fresh as your face.

You will also be wise to cleanse it with cold cream occasionally and finish the treatment by a light application of the skin food that you use on your face. This will help you to keep the skin smooth and soft and lovely.

Aside from the texture of the skin, there is the need of exercise to maintain the straight, flat lines that mark a beautiful back.

The following exercise is excellent for this purpose:

Stand erect, hands at sides, facing the wall and a few feet away from it.

Now allow yourself to fall forward against the wall, extending your arms out straight, so that the upper part of your body is supported by the palms of your hands.

Now push against the wall with all your weight. This pushing movement is very beneficial to your back and arms. It helps make your back straight and flat.

Then return to the first position, standing erect, your arms at your sides.

Repeat until you are tired.

This exercise will help train your back into beauty lines, and you must supplement the exercise by making an effort to sit and stand erect. When you are seated, remember to put your shoulders back, your chest out and your chin in. Your back will then take care of itself.

This will make you look much better, for a good posture improves a woman's appearance at least 100 per cent, to my way of thinking. Keep this in mind at all times and you will notice the added improvement in your beauty.

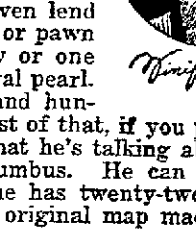

Stand Erect, Then Fall Forward, Pushing Against the Wall.

A hand-glass held in the correct position before a large mirror will show you better than anyone can tell you just how you should hold yourself to look your best. Consider your back from every angle, first as you normally hold yourself and then as you know you should hold yourself. Be sure, however, not to acquire a strained appearance in your effort to hold yourself correctly.

It is the natural way of standing straight with your shoulders comfortably held back—not strained back—that gives the appearance of ease and poise you wish to be yours. When you do the exercise I have described, bear this in mind, and employ the mirrors to check up on what you feel is the most comfortable posture for you.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT History and Illusions

Winifred Black

CRASH—there goes another illusion!

The Duke of Alba has crossed the wide ocean and gone to Los Angeles and he says, says he, in loud, piercing, unterrified tones, that Queen Isabella never pawned her jewels to send Columbus to America.

She didn't sell them, and she didn't even lend them to Columbus and let him sell them or pawn them—she didn't give him a single ruby or one diamond and not even the vestige of a royal pearl.

We've all been wrong for hundreds and hundreds of years, so there now make the most of that, if you please.

The Duke of Alba ought to know what he's talking about, he's a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus. He can trace his lineage back for fifteen centuries and he has twenty-two original letters written by Columbus and also an original map made by the hand of Columbus himself.

"I've made a study of Columbus' history," says the Duke of Alba, "and I'm afraid Columbus financed himself when he fitted out those three ships and sailed across the ocean and found—America.

"I'm sorry to spoil a pretty story, but somehow truth seems to do that so often, doesn't it?"

Must We Revise Our Beliefs?

Well, I wish the Duke had kept still about it myself, don't you?

What on earth is the use of studying history and then finding out four or five hundred years afterward that there wasn't a word of truth in a thing you learned.

Take that little affair of Sir Walter Raleigh and his cloak, for instance—they're beginning to whisper about that—these days.

And the other day an historian rose up in England and said that it was very unlikely that Alfred the Great burned the cakes in the old farmer's kitchen because at that time oaten cakes were not eaten by the peasants.

Oh, all right, we might as well give them all up, the nice little human interest stories that have come down to us through the ages.

Robert Bruce and the spider—I hate to see that go, but I suppose it's doomed with the rest of the tales.

Old King Cole—wasn't he a merry old soul, after all, and were there only two fiddlers instead of three, and what was it he had in his bowl—buttermilk maybe, or just plain water?

Was there never a real Annie Laurie or a real Kathleen Mavourneen? Was Prince Charlie really a handsome, blue-eyed rogue of a gallant with a way with him, or just a gangling, long-legged, pimple-faced young Englishman with nothing but the Scotch imagination between him and the commonplace?

Mary Queen of Scots, the most enchanting figure in history—is somebody going to rise up and tell us that Mary's red hair was dyed and that nobody was so very much in love with her, after all?

Dear me, I do hope they'll leave George Washington and his cherry tree alone! I really don't feel as if I could live in any sort of comfort without the background of that beloved hatchet.

And where do they get it all, these demolishers of Romance?

Who are they to know so much more than anyone ever knew on earth before?

Let's Keep Our Illusions.

Saving your presence, my Lord the Duke of Alba, I'm going to go right on believing that Isabella, Queen of Spain, sold her jewels to send Christopher Columbus across the ocean. I like the story better that way.

Why, even if you'd told me there was no such person as Santa Claus I wouldn't believe you—not for a minute.

I've seen Santa Claus hundreds of times, and more than that, I've felt the genial warmth of his presence on many a cold Christmas day when I was far and far from home.

Leave us an illusion or two, gentlemen, do for goodness sake! Life would be a dull affair without them.

The Calm Way in Which Lee Chow Departed.

KATHERINE made a note or two on a little pad of paper then crossed to the door.

"I shall have to get some things from the drug room," she said, "but I won't be gone long. Do you wish me to give any message to Katie and Marion, or do you want them up here?"

"Won't they bother you?" I asked.

"Not a bit," she answered cheerily. "This isn't a major operation you know."

Her smile and manner took away the last remnant of fear for my little lad, though of course I had known from Dr. Pettit's verdict that there were no serious consequences to be feared from the mysterious poison that had so swollen and discolored Junior's face and eyes.

"Then let them come up," I decided, "but—will Marion have time to run out to the car while you are in the drug room?"

"At Marion's usual gait—yes," she answered, smiling.

"Then please ask her to tell Lee Chow that we shall be here about—" I looked at her inquiringly.

"An hour," she responded.

"And to say that there is nothing serious the matter with Junior and that—" I hesitated a second, then added, "it was not the clams."

Katherine elevated her eyebrows whimsically as she turned the door-knob."

"I'll deliver your message," she said, "and I won't stop now to find out who Lee Chow is. But when I come back I'm going to ascertain whether I'd better order a strait jacket for you or whether a sedative will do."

Madge Quickly Silences Katie.

She went swiftly down the corridor, to return shortly with Marion and Katie in her wake—Marion, silent and self-effacing, Katie voluble in her relief that Junior was not seriously ill.

"Eet mighty goot ting dot old Chink didn't get enough poison in dose clams to hurt dot ba-bee mooch," she began as soon as she came in, but I cut her short sharply.

"Don't let me hear you say that cruel and untrue thing again, Katie!" I said sternly. "Dr. Pettit says it was not the clams at all, that the poison is from something Junior handled. Lee Chow had nothing to do with it."

She stared at me, cowed but unconvinced, and as she turned away I heard her mutter something disparaging to Dr. Pettit, but I knew that she would say nothing more before Lee Chow which was all I wanted. I cared no whit what her private opinion of the Chinese might be, and would make no effort to change her distorted idea of him. But I was resolved that she should bait the Oriental no more.

"Lee Chow Will Know."

Katherine worked swiftly, bathing Junior with lotions, and carrying out the other directions of Dr. Pettit. When she had finished it was a tired but much more comfortable little lad whom she gathered up in her arms.

"Auntie Katherine's to carry you downstairs," she announced, and Junior as docile under her dictum as he had been obstinate against Katie's similar offer, laid his head confidingly against her shoulder and was asleep by the time we reached the car.

"Get in, Madge," Katherine whispered, "and I'll hand him to you."

I obeyed her. Katie took the seat beside me, and Marion clambered again to her post beside Lee Chow. I saw Katherine look sharply at Lee Chow as I gave him the directions for driving to the farmhouse, and knew that the explanation of the man's presence which I had given Katie, would never satisfy the keen brain of either Katherine or Lillian, although I also knew that neither woman would ever seek to gratify her curiosity unbidden.

We reached the farmhouse in good time, and when Lee Chow had brought the car to a stop, he stepped out of it and helped me to alight. Then with a low bow he asked respectfully:

"Boss lady need me any more tonight?"

"No, thank you, Lee Chow."

"Then I go," he announced calmly. "If boss lady want Lee Chow in big hurry, can tell cousin in laundry. But Lee Chow will know when boss lady need him."

He turned away, and the next second was padding swiftly away down the drive."

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

Four Fish Dishes for Breakfast.

PEOPLE who live near water are very apt to use more fish than those who must depend upon the canned product. Fish-dishes properly prepared make very appetizing breakfast dainties for those who make the meal a substantial one. There are a few of the fish-dishes that may be prepared ready to cook in the morning which is a help for the quick breakfast, but the main things must be cooked at the usual time.

Codfish Ramekins.

The ramekins may be prepared at night and only need fifteen minutes baking in the morning. For six ramekins take enough cold boiled cod fish, freed from skin and bone and finely flaked, to make a cupful and a half. Add to it a beaten egg, three quarters of a cupful of fine crumbs, a teaspoonful of grated onion, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of finely chopped celery leaves and a half cupful of cream. Fill buttered ramekins with the mixture dotting the tops thickly with butter. A tablespoonful of cream may be added to each one. Put in the oven and bake about fifteen minutes, until a delicate brown.

Codfish Cakes.

Take a half of a whole salt cod, or a good sized piece of that which comes in boxes and soak it over night, change the water at least [illegible] and cover the fish with boiling water, allow it to [illegible] off the water and add fresh boiling water. Scald once more, then drain and flake it. Have ready eight boiled potatoes and mash them smoothly, add the fish, a large lump of butter, a little pepper, a little salt if it is needed and one beaten egg in a half cupful of cream. Work the mass smooth with the hand, then form the cakes and lay them on a floured plate. If they are to stand, cover with a linen cloth. Fry three or four slices of salt pork until crisp, lift out, and fry the fish-cakes in the fat. Put them onto a hot plate and lay a little piece of the pork on top of each. Serve at once.

Filet of Sole.

Have a good sized fish prepared and cut into six filets. Dip each filet into melted butter and dust lightly with flour, then place on a shallow buttered baking dish, sprinkle with a little onion and lemon juice mixed, pour over a little melted butter mixed with a half cupful of cream and bake in the oven a delicate brown, basting once with the dish gravy.

Creamed Shrimp.

Take a large can of shrimp, or a pint of freshly boiled shrimp, and free from all shell. Break into halves with a silver fork. Make a rich cream sauce and add the shrimp to it with a diced hard boiled egg. Have ready boxes made of bread that has been cut [illegible] half inch slices, crust trimmed off and the center hollowed out, then toasted in the oven and buttered. Place the boxes on a hot dish and fill them with the shrimp, pouring the sauce over all. Garnish with sprays of fresh parsley.

Three-Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE WORK AS WE KNOW IT IS UNKNOWN.

NESTLING in the deep, blue waters of the broad Pacific Ocean, and surrounded by a fairy ring of coral reef, there lies a veritable island paradise, where the cares and worries of life are forgotten, and where the natives live a happy and carefree existence.

The name of this island is Moorea. It belongs to the celebrated group of Society Islands and is fourteen miles from Tahiti. The people of beautiful Moorea are still unspoiled and unsullied by the white man; and being more colorful and more primitive in civilization, are consequently much more interesting than the Tahitian Islanders.

The natives speak no English, but the great majority of them understand and speak French fluently, due to the fact that they belong to France and are ruled by a local French representative.

They are among the cleanest people in the world and bathe at least three times a day in the clear streams of water that flow down from the mountains. Nobody works in Moorea. The people, having no responsibilities, are interested only in fishing, gathering fruit and making copra.

Fruits of all kinds grow in abundance all over the island. Cocoanut palms, wild oranges and lime trees may be found on the mountain slopes of this beautiful island. Game is also plentiful in the mountains and the streams are just teeming with all sorts and varieties of fish, from sharks to minnows.

The simple and primitive natives of Moorea enjoy what we would call "the life of Riley." They build their own houses, make their own clothes from the leaves of the trees, and whenever they feel hungry, they just go out and kill a wild pig or a wild chicken.

Such white men's diseases as smallpox, malaria, grippe and measles have taken their toll of the native population and disease is rampant on this beautiful island. Captain Cook, the man who discovered these islands, was the first to introduce the dread diseases among the natives, and now, the population is only 1,500, where formerly it was thousands.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22.

A generally happy and flourishing state of affairs may be looked for on this day, judging by the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. Those in the employment of others are under the encouraging influence of the luminaries in sextile aspect, a fortuitous figure supported by the friendly Saturn place, which promises reward for industry, application and perseverance. Jupiter and Venus, also in friendly aspect, make for prosperous and happy conditions, but care must be taken to avoid strife and to shun accident.

Those whose birthday it is have the augury of a prosperous and happy year in all their connections, if they will avoid all contention born of their tendency to overplay their witty and clever tongues. Those in the employment of others are favored. There is some presage of accident; be cautious. A child born on this day may be clever and quick of wit and sharp of tongue, which should be controlled, as it may interfere with an otherwise pleasant and prosperous career. It may best succeed in the employment of others.

ADVICE TO GIRLS :: :: :: By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man twenty-three years of age. I have been going with a girl twenty years of age. We are going together for about a year and a half. I am very much in love with her, and have every reason to believe she is in love with me, too. She has graduated from high school and is a very bright girl. I have only graduated from grammar school.

I know her parents do not consider me a proper suitor for their daughter because I have not had the same education she has, and also for financial reasons.

I bought a car about seven months ago and am in financial straits at present. But I have a good job and also chances for advancement. It would take about two years before I could marry her.

Now I know she is very unhappy to have her [illegible] feel that way. She says she hopes that I will be able to show them some day that everything will be all right.

Do you think that I ought to continue going with her? I have told her that I didn't think it was proper to keep this up, as things might not turn out right, and then I would spoil her chances of getting another man who would be able to provide for her better than I could.

DOUBTFUL.

DOUBTFUL: The young lady's parents probably object to you not so much because you lack the advantages of education which she has, but because you are making serious proposals to her when you have no right to. A young man who cannot support a wife should put all thoughts of marriage out of his head until he is able to do so. You would be doing the girl a great injustice by expecting her to wait for you. Can't you be just friends—provided, of course, her parents approve—and if your plans develop sometime in the future, you can renew your proposals. In the meantime, the young lady would be left free of any obligations to you. That seems to be the only honorable course a young man in your position can take.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

WILL RELEASE ANDERSON

Former Anti-Saloon League Head to Be Out of Sing Sing by Christmas.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—William H. Anderson, former head of the New York Anti-Saloon league, will be out of Sing Cing by Christmas.

Sentenced to serve from one to two years in prison after his conviction last March of forgery, Anderson has been granted a parole and on Christmas eve will leave the "big gray hotel up the river."

The state board of parole made the announcement last night following a meeting at the prison when it reversed a ruling made last month by which Anderson and seventy-three other convicts would have lost the privilege of being paroled until they had been at least a year in the prison.

Anderson asked permission of prison authorities to grow his moustache again in anticipation of his release.

A Santa Claus Story.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: A Chicago special says that Santa Claus is very much interested in the publication of income tax payments. The statement is based on the numerous letters received at the revenue office from wives, sons and daughters, asking information about "dad's" income. We quote:

"The writers say they long for new roadsters, diamonds, fur cloaks and mean to have them if they find out the bread winner of the family is holding out on them in the matter of his salary or earnings."

Such a spirit is the epitome of selfishness. We should like to know what Santa Claus thinks about it. It is enough to make the old patron saint resolve to absent himself from the homes of the rich and selfish and confine his visits to the dwelling places of the poor and those who believe that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

It shows how selfishness cankers the hearts of some and destroys for them the spirit of Christmas. He who derives more joy from receiving than from giving has shut gladness out of his heart.

Furthermore, the Santa Claus story proves that many wives and sons and daughters are more interested in "dad's" income than in "dad" himself. They use him for what they can get out of him. He is to them only a money-making machine to gratify their extravagance. So long as he showers his beneficences upon them he is in good standing, but even then the suspicion lurks in their bosoms that he may be "holding out," that he could do more. So they want to check up on him.

He dies and they fight over the residue. Where there should be a common grief there are individual hates. "Dad" is laid away and forgotten. All that counts is the estate he has left.

If Santa Claus is interested in anything except giving, we should think he is interested in the Chicago story.

It shows how far human nature has drifted away from the Star of Bethlehem, so far as observance of the Christmas spirit is concerned.

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canviss was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

Four Kansas Aggie Players Appearing Last Time

NEBRASKA GAME IS AGGIE HIGH SPOT

Students Beginning to Wake up to Fact That Victory Over the Huskers More Desirable Than Over Kansas.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Nov. 21.—Nebraska's squad of thirty-one football players arrived here at 2 a. m. Friday, remaining in their special cars until morning. A workout was slated for the Dawson eleven Friday afternoon.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Nov. 21.—Four regulars on the Kansas Aggie varsity squad will play their last football game before a Manhattan crowd Saturday when the Wildcats clash with the Nebraska Cornhuskers. The four men are seniors and will finish school here next spring. With the downing of one ancient enemy, Kansas university, the quartet has one more football duty to perform before they feel they have fulfilled their duty to themselves as well as to the school. That duty, they say, is to defeat the Cornhuskers on the gridiron and it will be with this determination foremost in their minds that they will take the field.

Bear Down On Passse.

Heavy scrimmage every night with special emphasis on the passing attack is the program directed by Coach Charles Bachman, who is a product of Notre Dame and who will endeavor to develop the Notre Dame style of attack which sent the Cornhuskers to defeat last Saturday. The Aggies came through the Drake game with no additions to the injury list and are going through the week of practice in fine fettle and filled with confidence.

In former years Nebraska has depended on its superiority of reserves and straight football to defeat the Aggies, but this year the Aggies reserve is equal to any in the Valley.

The reserves played one important part in the victory over K. U. and will be held in readiness for the Saturday fray. The largest football throng in Manhattan history is expected here for the game.

Working until after dark, the Kansas Aggies had their most strenuous signal practice and scrimmage of the present week Thursday night. Special emphasis was placed upon the perfecting of a number of plays which have not been used in previous Aggie games this year.

The Aggies have in store for the Huskers a passing combination which will dazzle the invaders. Bachman's proteges, the Aggie student body and alumni still regard the annual Kansas Aggie-Jayhawker tilt as the biggest game of the season.

The athletic powers are slowly weaning the students away from the delusion and putting them straight, that victory over Nebraska offers the Aggies twice as much in prestige as victory over any other team in the valley, so the Aggies are pointed for the Huskers as has not been the case for the last three years. The Aggie pass, with Smith on the hurling end, worked for the first time this season last Saturday. The Huskers will find it necessary to break it up if they expect to take their customary victory from the Wild Cats.

MAROONS' CHANCE TO CINCH TITLE

Chicago Will Win Undisputed Claim to Big Ten Honors, Provided Staggmen Can Beat Wsconsin Eleven.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—With an undisputed Big Ten championship as the prize, the University of Chicago Maroons went into secret practice today for the clash with Wisconsin's Badgers here tomorrow.

Five of Coach Stagg's regulars sing their swan songs in his game and as the squad has no post season games scheduled, every ounce of power will be thrown into the tussle. The Maroons will not have to hold anything out for use later on.

Wisconsin Has Weak Team.

Wisconsin, unable to beat any Big Ten team so far this year, has one of the weakest teams in the school's history but has taken heart by the fact Northwestern held Chicago to a 3 to 0 win. The Badgers refuse to believe their team isn't better than Northwestern and on this belief they are counting on victory.

Should Chicago lose tomorrow's game the Big Ten race for the title would be thrown into a hopeless jam unless all the other leaders also lose.

Illinois, leading the procession until defeated by Minnesota, clashes with Ohio state at Urbana. With the mighty "Red" Grange almost certainly out of the game, the Buckeyes are given an almost even chance of winning. Altho beaten by Indiana and Michigan, Ohio held Chicago to a tie, which was all the Illini could do.

Michigan to Play Iowa.

Michigan's Wolverines, who have won every game since they lost to Illinois early in the season, meet Iowa at Ann Arbor. If they down the Hawkeyes—as they are expected to do—they would be conference champions should Chicago lose to Wisconsin.

Indiana and Purdue, both out of the title race, meet in their annual battle for the "championship of Indiana exclusive of Notre Dame." The game is to be played at Lafayette.

The other Big Ten elevens—Minnesota and Northwestern—take on non-conference teams tomorrow, Minnesota meeting Vanderbilt at Minneapolis and Northwestern attempting to stop Notre Dame in a game at Chicago.

Purple Fans Confident.

Impossible as it may seem, Northwestern fans are actually expecting to blot Knute Rockne's perfect season. A team that can stop the Chicago line—heaviest in the west—and prevent the Maroons from scoring a touchdown, can stop "the four horsemen of Notre Dame" is their argument.

Three Lincoln High Regulars May Be on Sidelines With Injuries

Coache Browne is worried.

All football coaches have worries, but the Lincoln high mentor has a real problem to face when his Red and Black huskies face Theodore Roosevelt high here Saturday for three of his regulars, E. Tindell, Gohde and Buechner will probably be on the sidelines with injuries.

Tindell, the big Lincoln tackle has a sprained ankle but was also declared ineligible for the fray by the athletic board on account of his studies. Gohde has not been in suit all week on account of a bad knee. Buechner left the York game with a bruised shoulder which has been slow in mending.

Linder will undoubtedly handle Tindell's tackle in fine shape. Linder is the heaviest man on the Red and Black squad, lacking only in experience. Lesh will be moved to the other tackle with Still and Blodgett filling in at the guards. Koster and Tobin may get their chance at one of the line positions before the game is over.

Browne has either McCarthy or Watkins to take Buechner's place. McCarthy has been the reserve end in the games of late and will probably get the call.

The backfield is in tip-top form. Weyand, Witte, McBride and Corrick came out of the York battle without a scratch. McBride has been showing up especially well in this week's practice. "Bud" has been greatly under-rated in previous games but he has always delivered when yards were needed.

The probable Lincoln lineup:

Ends—McCarthy and Brochu.
Tackles—Linder and Lesh.
Guards—Blodgett and Still.
Center—Bauers.
Quarterback—Weyand.
Halfbacks—Witte and McBride.
Fullback—Corrick.

Would Match Munn With "Toots" Mondt

From the Kansas City Post.

What of a finish wrestling match between Wayne "Big" Munn and Joe "Toots" Mondt?

That is the question uppermost in the minds of local mat fans following Munn's decisive victory over Wallace Dugid, Canadian. Thus far, Munn's longest fall has been seventeen minutes. His tremendous size and strength make him the most feared young wrestler in the game today

On the other hand, Mondt is considered one of the "toughest" customers in the ring and has never failed to give an opponent a run for his money. It will be remembered that the Colorado cowboy gained a fall from Champion Lewis in a title match last year.

Mat fans here think that Mondt would give Munn some real opposition and will afford enough competition so that the Nebraskan will have to "show his stuff" to win.

Mondt gave Lewis one of the hardest battles the champion has had since winning the title and if Munn can toss "Toots" in the same handy fashion that he has disposed of other lights, then he could not be denied a bout for the world's championship.

Promoter Kaufman this morning would not venture a statement regarding a Munn-Mondt match, but declared that he would "feel the public pulse" before making an announcement.

Cambridge — The entire student body with band and cheer leaders watched the Crimson's last practice here yesterday before the Yale game.

Madison — Expecting to uncork everything in its reportoire to win at least one game this season, Coach Jack Ryan took his Wisconsin gridders to Chicago today.

Boxing Season Is Opened at Omaha

OMAHA, Nov. 21.—The winter boxing season will open here tonight when Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha, meets Pete Latzo, Wilkesbarre, Pa., welterweight, in a ten round contest at the auditorium. Schlaifer was a slight favorite in the betting.

Latzo worked out here yesterday and displayed a lot of speed. He doesn't carry a punch like Schlaifer, but he's faster.

Fans are more interested in the professional ring debut of Royal Coffman, Council Bluffs lightweight who went to Paris as a member of the American Olympic games boxing team. Coffman meets Dick Dillon, a veteran from Kansas City.

The other bouts on the program are ten rounds between Russie Leroy, Fargo, N. D., and Frankie Schlaifer, Chicago, four rounds between Tommy Grogan and Lee Krupski, Omaha, and four rounds between Jack Higgins, Omaha, and Frank Larrabee, Lincoln.

Peru Bobcats Lose Several Players

PERU, Neb., Nov. 21.—The Peru Bobcats leave Peru Tuesday in a special car for Chadron. Coach Graf and seventeen Bobcats yet to be defeated make up the party.

Graf's team is in fair condition. He has lost McElroy, one of the best quarterbacks in the state; Bob Bath, a powerful line plunger, and Vic Bracke, a veteran halfback. And he is not certain that Wilbert Zorn, shifty halfback, and Claud Matthews, speedy guard, can make the trip. But the coach smiles a grim smile and leaves predictions to Chadron.

Peru's goal line is yet to be crossed. Whether Chadrou can run the ends or punch the line remains to be seen. Cotner scored the only points scored against the Bobcats—two dropkicks. Wayne and Kearney scored against Chadron.

Evanston — Coach Thistlewaite sent his Purple gridders thru a light signal drill today and announced the team "is ready" for Notre Dame. Northwestern hopes to put up a better fight against the Irish than Nebraska did last week.

Ty Cobb: Remaker of Base Ball
Features
An Original Idea—
Why Ty Was Fast—
Lazy Ball Players.

(Copyrighted, 1924, in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER XX.

By H. G. Salinger.

Several new features were introduced into baseball by Ty Cobb. One of them helped his batting and this has been copied by nearly every player. Another helped his base-running, but as far as is known, no other man ever employed the same means to increase his speed.

In the early spring Cobb had a shoemaker fix weights in the soles of his shoes. Both shoes were equally well leaded. Cobb ran with the added weight on the bottom of his feet. This put him under a handicap, but it developed his leg muscles, made them fit, and the running developed wind and stamina.

When Cobb got ready to launch his campaign the weights were removed and he felt as if he were running on air. It helped his speed. The training with weights was difficult, but when actual play started his work was much lighter.

For Same Purpose.

The other stunt that Cobb worked was for the same purpose, making lighter the burden imposed. This was his mentioned habit of carrying three bats out of the dugout and swinging the three until the pitcher was ready to deliver the ball. Tossing two away, the one he held felt as light as a lead pencil. Nearly all players carry three bats to the plate now, but probably no other player ever wore lead in his shoes during spring training.

The plan of using the lead was original with Cobb. We do not believe that he got the idea from anyone else, but he was not the only one who used it. Alfred Shrubb, England's famous distance runner who at one time held every record from one to ten miles, used the same system. Shrubb also wore leaded shoes while in training and credited much of his success to this system.

Other successful champions have done similar things to carry them to the heights. Their rule, like Cobb's, was thoro preparation.

Jack Dempsey had a weak left hand. He did all his punching with the right at the time he started his climb to a championship goal. When Dempsey became champion it was noticed that his left hand was as good as the right and probably better. Most of his success in the ring had been due to the powerful left. He developed the left by tying his right hand to his side and punching the bag for hours, or boxing, using only the left. He did this until the left was as useful as the right.

What Travis Did.

Walter J. Travis is one of the best golfers this or any other country has produced. Travis' strongest point is his putting. And yet, Travis used to be a weak putter. The size of the normal golf cup is four and one-fourth inches. Travis got some cups made that were about one-half that size, or just a bit larger than a golf ball. He practiced putting for hours, trying to roll the ball into these half-size cups. After practicing with the smaller cups over long stretches, Travis returned to putting greens that had the normal size cups and these looked about a foot in diameter to him then.

Paavo Nurmi, sensation of the 1924 Olympic games at Paris and regarded as the greatest distance runner of all time, did not do his training by running the exact distance he was to run in the Olympic events; he would run two, three, four and five times that far. Some days he ran from twenty to thirty miles and at times he ran as far as forty miles. He was developing muscular power and lung power. After running these long stretches daily it was little more than a jog covering the distance he was asked to run in the Olympic games. That is why he ran so easily and that is why he finished so fresh when other runners dropped exhausted. The other runners had trained for the exact distance and no further.

Just as Others Did.

These instances are cited here to show that Cobb, while a super ball player, gained his eminence by working in the same way that other leaders in sport worked. He was an exception among ball players, but it was not a natural gift. Cobb attained results by long and hard effort and by using his brain.

"The trouble with nearly all ball players is that they try to cover their faults instead of correcting them. There is hardly a ball player who doesn't know his weaknesses. But there hardly ever is a ball player who tries to correct them. Nearly all try to gloss over them; to hide them; they think they are fooling people, but the only person that is fooled is the ball player himself.

"It isn't fun to go out and practice for hours and for days trying to overcome some weakness. There is no joy in concentrating on one thing. That is monotonous and most men don't care for that kind of monotony. Hiding the fault is so much easier and that is what they try to do. But they don't. And that's the reason you don't see more good ball players. There are too many lazy ball players."

One of them, known as "Paul" took his trusty double barrel shotgun, while the other, known as "Bob" took his single barrel shotgun.

These two men liked to hunt, they enjoyed the sport greatly; they hunted for the pleasure they got out of it and did not seek to commercialize their fun in any way.

Paul always came home with his hunting bags full of game, while Bob seldom had anything to divide with his friends or even his own family. When a flock of birds flew up, Paul always got two shots at them from his double barrel gun while Bob only got one chance. Paul invariably bagged two birds out of the flock, while Bob sometimes got one. The fact remains that Paul got all he possibly could out of each flock while Bob passed up many a good chance by not having TWO shots to fire instead of only one.

There is a moral to this little story that can be used in business—The ALL-DAY Lincoln Journal service is A DOUBLE barrel service, with its morning and evening coverage.

Three Carded Saturday and Two Thanksgiving in Conference Race—Records of Teams Meeting Saturday.

COLUMBIA Mo. Nov 21 — Ames will play Drake at Ames, Oklahoma will play Washington at St Louis and Nebraska will play the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, Saturday afternoon in the semi-final round of Missouri Valley conference football, with the final round scheduled for Thanksgiving day, when two more conference games—Kansas-Missouri and Kansas Aggies-Oklahoma, are carded There is one non conference game on the bill for Saturday, Grinnell meeting Creighton at Omaha, while Thanksgiving day will find Nebraska entertaining the Oregon Aggies, Drake journeying to Gainesville to play Florida university, and Washington playing host to Mississippi A & M at St Louis, all in non conference affairs

Drake Faces Big Chance.

The Drake Ames game will hold the center of interest in Saturday's list of conflict marking as it does the last time that Drake's unblemished conference record will be placed in jeopardy, and also the last appearance of the Iowa State eleven in moleskins this year The Bulldogs hold the edge in the dope, altho several upsets point to the possibility of a Cyclone victory over the Bulldogs The records of the two teams so far this season follow:

Drake	Opponent	Ames	Opponent
33—Utah	14	23—Neb Wes.	13
19—Knox	10	0—Wisconsin	17
13—Grinnell	0	13—Kansas	10
28—Oklahoma	0	0—Missouri	7
6—Kansas	6	21—Kas Ags	0
7—Kansas Ag	6	—Minnesota	7
		13—Grinnell	14
106—Total	36	97—Total	68

Nebraska undoubtedly will enjoy an advantage in prestige over the Kansas Aggies when the two meet at Manhattan due largely to the erratic play of the Wildcats But much of the uncertainty which has followed the Bachman crew has been due to bad breaks, and with the luck their way this week the Aggies might make the going hard for the eleven from Lincoln The records

Nebraska	Opp'n't	Aggies	Opponent
6—Illinois	9	23—Washburn	0
7—Oklahoma.	14	19—Emporia	7
33—Colgate	7	6—Kansas	0

14—Missouri	6	0—Ames	21
6—Notre Dame	34	6—Drake	7
80—Totals	77	61—Totals	49

Sooners Hold the Odds.

Oklahoma will enjoy decided odds over the Pikers when the Sooners take the field at Washington university, St Louis, altho both teams are more than half way down the percentage list in the conference standings Previous to this week the two elevens have fared as follows

Okla.	Opponent	Wash	Opponent
0—Edmund N	2	7—Drury	0
14—Nebraska	7	0—Grinnell	14
0—Drake	28	13—Rolla	0
0—Ok A & M.	6	0—Kansas	48

CHAPTER X

Under the Microscope

Every year sees a refinement of scouting methods—a tightening up of the organization, a wider range of territory covered and a more thoro system of spying out promising players long before they reach college. Scouting work falls, in the main, under two heads—first, discovering good men and getting them, and, second, watching and reporting on games of rival colleges

In rounding up men the scout naturally articulates, thru the coach, with the alumni, and draws upon the highly systematized mass of data and office machinery, built up by the coach and the graduate manager But the scout must organize his own sources of information and he also must keep himself closely informed thru clipping bureaus, statistical gleanings, correspondence and chance tips of any and all kinds

On learning of a promising player, it is his business instantly to lay all the facts before the coach If the man is worth serious consideration, the scout immediately has at his disposal a wealth of information and suggestions The address of every alumnus of the college is always instantly at hand, the index card giving data as to his athletic interests his degree of loyalty to the institution, and his address

Surrounding the Prospect.

If the prospect is remote, the first move is to glean information about him, his style of playing, etc, from the nearest alumnus If the reports are encouraging, the inquiry is continued, and if it is then apparent that the boy is worth getting the scout is dispatched to his home town to watch him in action—and incidentally to gather quietly the most exhaustive information concerning the youth, his scholarship his finances, his personal whims and preferences, his college plans and his fraternity likes or dislikes

This information is all quietly picked up before any direct approach is made to the boy It is possible—and this often happens—that the drive will be dropped before it gets to the point of any definite suggestion to the boy

I sometimes smile when I think of some of the ingenuous youngsters who for two years have been studied like bugs under a microscope, and knew nothing about it.

I have in mind one lad, now a junior in a Massachusetts high school He is, perhaps, the most alluring football prospect in America today He is a fine, carefree boy, who delivers milk and does odd jobs in his spare time, and lives in a little white-washed cottage with his mother

I know that within the last two years enough money has been spent on this boy to buy his mother a mansion. Scouts from colleges all along the Atlantic seaboard have quietly visited his town. They have studied minutely his every move in practice and scheduled games In the files of the big college offices there is enough correspondence and data about this lad to fill volumes The boy knows nothing about all this He is such a sensational prospect that the scouts have come to a deadlock All are afraid of a showdown and they are working and digging in the hope of setting some inescapable trap for the boy

Fairy Is Waiting.

This boy, struggling along and helping take care of his mother, does not know it, but just as surely as the sun rises the gates of a dozen big colleges will swing open for him two years from now, and he will march triumphantly into some glittering new world of youthful dreams He will find himself mysteriously invested with scholarship honors, holding a make-believe job, enjoying fame and personal prestige

Furthermore, this golden highway will lead from the college out into the world, for the makers and mentors of football carry thru A few years from now this boy will be found comfortably placed in some big corporation or getting a toe hold in the bond business in New York He is a clever and personable lad and he will go a long way His mother doesn't know it, but a fairy is standing by to change that whitewashed cottage into a palace

Suppose the boy merely had brains instead of legs? Well, that's the other side of the picture, which is none of my business

Fraternities play a big part in scouting activities It is imperative that a good scout be a member of a fraternity, and if it is a good fraternity, so much the better. It happens that I belong to a good fraternity—one of the best This membership has been invaluable to me An alumni fraternity club, such as the beautifully appointed clubs of the big eastern cities, or even the ordinary college fraternity house, is a splendid base of operations When we get down to the business of dazzling the youth with a foretaste of ease and elegance there is nothing more useful than an exclusive clubhouse

FEATURE GAMES ON SATURDAY'S CARD

Several Sectional Titles in Balance—Expect New Record for Attendance as Result of Intense Interest.

NEW YORK, Nov 21—Feature games and sectional classics abound on the schedule tomorrow, which will bring the 1924 football season within one short step of the end Sectional championships hang upon three important games and other big games in which no actual title is involved, probably will establish the season's record for attendance

More than 200,000 spectators will pay nearly a half million dollars to see California and Stanford fight for the Pacific coast championship; Yale and Harvard in a fight for "big three" honors, and Ohio State and Illinois battle "for the love of it"

May Decide Valley Title.

Iowa State and Drake will also pack them in at Ames for a game that may give Drake the championship of the Missouri Valley conference

Notre Dame and Northwestern will draw a great crowd to see the Irish against their second western conference eleven on the schedule

There are so many big games scheduled in the east for Thanksgiving day that tomorrow will be more or less of a slow day with the Yale-Harvard battle at New Haven topping the card in general interest

Harvard is bemoaning the loss of four letter men in the backfield from injuries and everything points to an overwhelming Yale victory Critics figure the score will depend entirely upon the choice of the blue coaches in going after the highest possible score or in taking a victory without risk Yale is a 2 to 1 favorite and the New Haven campus feels that Harvard will be beaten at least 20 to 7

All of the real big games of the day are scheduled in the middle west.

Some Have Off-Day

Most of the southern teams have an off-day getting ready for big games next Thursday Nebraska and the Kansas Aggies have the only game in the Missouri Valley with the exception of the Iowa State-Drake battle

The Probable Reason

"It says, here in the paper," began Mrs Fumblegate in the midst of her purusal of the county seat newspaper, "that a man dropped dead right in front of the ticket window in the railroad depot in Torpidville"

"I guess likely the station agent must have given him a civil answer to a civil question" replied Farmer Fumblegate—Kansas City Star

MAY ORDER A RECOUNT

Kingsbury Claims Failure to Put X After Name Does Not Eliminate Vote.

PONCA, Neb., Nov. 21.—A recount of votes in the eighth judicial district judgeship contest may be ordered because it was found that several hundred voters failed to put an "X" after writing in names of candidates. These ballots were thrown out as illegal.

C. A. Kingsbury, defeated candidate, claims they should have been counted. Mark Ryan, of Pender, was the successful candidate. S. T. Frum, of South Sioux City, also was a candidate.

The eighth district comprises Dixon, Cedar, Thurston and Dakota counties. It was said that 400 ballots had been thrown away in Dixon county alone.

COOLIDGE IN CONDOLENCE

Sends Message to Former Secretary of President Harding, on Widow's Death.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—President Coolidge today sent the following message of condolence on Mrs. Harding's death to George B. Christian, former secretary to President Harding:

"Please express to the members of Mrs. Harding's family the sincerest condolences of Mrs. Coolidge and myself. We share in fullest measure the sorrow which her death brings to them. We are dsiappointed that her brave fight was in vain, but it is a source of pride to know that she made it and made it so valiantly as to arouse the admiration of her countless friends.

"We shall never forget her unceasing and helpful friendship for us which will become an increasingly sweet and grateful memory. The nation mourns for her. Our deepest sympathy goes out to those nearest and dearest to her."

Paul Whiteman says—

"MY own experience proves that people who own a Manhattan Loud Speaker hear my orchestra exactly as well as those who are actually present when we are playing at the Palais Royal."

The fact that Mr. Whiteman uses a Manhattan Loud Speaker in his own home "speaks louder" than any words of ours for the excellent reproducing qualities of this instrument. He should know good music.

FROWN ON PUBLICITY

INCOME TAX RETURNS MAY BE SECRET AGAIN.

Reaction in Congress Following Printing of Lists and Law May Be Modified at the Next Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A partial poll of congress indicates there may be no more publicity of income tax returns.

The reaction from the recent publication by newspapers of tax totals is swinging strong sentiment in both houses and it now appears inevitable that some modification of the new law will be made at the December short session.

A number of democrats and republicans who voted for tax publicity are changing their minds along with Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, a democratic leader, who renounced the new law for which he voted.

But the swing of sentiment has made no change in the position of the LaFollette group which favored the act. Senator George Norris, Nebraska, acting leader of the midwestern "progressives" announced today that he would fight for even more complete publicity if an attempt was made to tamper with the present law.

Chairman Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee is preparing an amendment which will be introduced as soon as congress reconvenes, wiping out the entire publicity provision.

THE RIGHT HUSBAND

The Story of a Popular Girl Who Chose the Right Man

SYNOPSIS.

Every girl is anxious to find "the right husband." Daphne Brown, an exceedingly pretty trained nurse, was especially desirous to marry the right man because so many of her friends had married the wrong one. But Daphne was so popular with Dr. Willard Wilson, Dr. Wolfert Olson and Vandewater Henderson, a patient in the hospital, that she was often in doubt just which suitor was really "the right one." Begin this story and read of the problems which every popular girl must solve.

Daphne Keeps Her Temper.

"Spin it out, I'm waiting," chuckled Dr. Wilson, giving Daphne another x-ray glance. "I know our Apollo patient, the honorable Vandewater Henderson has proposed to you and it's your first proposal. You're really quite flabbergasted. How did he begin? What did he say? How much time did he give you to decide?"

Daphne resented Dr. Wilson's attitude for the first itme. She had rather liked him for his matter-of-fact, direct way of approaching a subject. She had liked the way he always let her know he "saw thru" her and analyzed her thoughts. But now he was getting too personal! No man had the right to ask her how another man proposed.

She turned to him with a crimson face and snapping eyes. "Do you think I am the type of girl who tells what one man says in confidence to the next man I meet?" she asked.

Dr. Wilson smiled. "Then he has proposed!"

"I didn't say so."

"But he has said something in confidence!"

"This is a purely personal matter," warned Daphne. "I'm simply not going to talk about it."

"You don't have to. I know."

Daphne was on the verge of asking Dr. Wilson to stop his runabout and let her out. Then she remembered that she had never fallen out with any of the doctors. Falling out with the people in an office or employed in the same line of work is like having a quarrel with your life mate. You can patch things up again, but somehow, it never seems the same.

Dr. Wilson was looking at her again. "You don't want to marry that Apollo," he continued in his old persuasive tone. "In two months you'd give your life's blood to be back here at the hospital. A widower with a child! Fie, Daphne, you don't know your own mind. Besides"——

He paused, whistled and then, tapping her lightly on the arm with his gauntlet glove, whispered: "He's a gay old bird, Daphne, with a reputation which won't bear inspection."

"I don't believe you!" exclaimed Daphne. "If you can't say something kind about Mr. Henderson, please don't fling mud at him. I have been his nurse for two weeks and I am a pretty good judge of character myself."

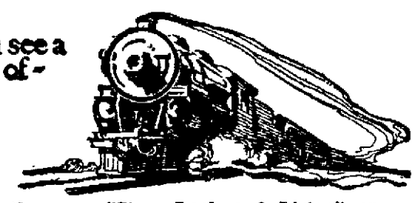

"Oh, I'm not a mud-slinger," laughed Dr. Wilson with a slight toss of his head. "I always have facts back of me."

Daphne was calm now. She did not know whether to believe Dr. Wilson or not. She made up her mind to be as matter of fact with the doctor as he had been with her and to demand the "facts." Then something went wrong with the runabout. It stopped dead short and the car behind crashed into them.

Everything became black to Daphne until she heard Dr. Wilson's voice weakly commanding, "Give the young woman attention first. I'm not as badly hurt as it looks."

FREE FROM DOMINATION

GOMPERS WOULD KEEP FEDERATION FROM POLITICS.

Report of President of Organization Expected to Sound Death Knell of Separate Labor Party Movement.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 21.—The American federation of labor must be kept free from "political party domination."

This is the recommendation of President Samuel Gompers and the executive council of the American federation of labor contained in the report to be submitted to the convention here today.

The report, which is expected to sound the death knell of the separate labor party movement, declares that "we are partisan to principles—not to a political party." Adoption of the recommendations by the convention is assured, according to labor leaders.

In the direction of extending the political activity of American labor, the report recommended that all non-partisan political campaign committees be maintained on a permanent basis; that particular attention be paid to the political organization of women in the trades union movement and in trades union families; that the present cumbersome ballot be so changed as to make independent voting easier; that changes in laws be advocated where necessary, to make the functioning of independent political movements more readily effective; that labor participate more generally than heretofore in primary elections; that a plan be devised whereby forward-looking groups of persons who are not trade unionists may be enlightened in labor's non-partisan political campaigns.

Concerning the results of the last election, the report states that the number of congressmen elected with labor's endorsement totals 170, the same as the number elected with labor's approval in 1922. Of the number, 126 are democrats, 40 republicans, 3 farmer-laborites, and one independent. The results in the senate have not been definitely ascertained, the report says.

Thus the interests of the people in general "and of labor in particular," are largely safeguarded and "the opportunity is provided for realization of many of the hopes and aspirations for progressive legislation for the masses of the people, the report concludes.

ENJOINING AN INJUNCTION

Judge Westover Wouldn't Do It and Now Supreme Court Is Asked to Proceed.

The refusal of Judge Westover to issue an injunction to prevent another injunction he had issued from becoming effective was the primary cause for the argument before the supreme court Monday of a case in which school districts D and 1 in Dawes county are battling with district No. 80 for the possession of $250 worth of taxes.

The county superintendent, a woman, several years ago, started in to do some redistricting, in the course of which she drew up a map that showed that No. 80, which is located in the northern part of the county, was to lose ten or twelve sections of land to the other two. When No. 80 heard about it a lawyer was hired, and the superintendent enjoined.

Being unfamiliar with such things as injunctions the superintendent said nothing to the county attorney, and when the case was called she defaulted and judgment went against her. She blithely went ahead with her redistricting, and was astonished a little later to find herself cited for contempt of court. Then she got a lawyer.

The court gave her the choice of doing as the previous order commanded her and restore the land to No. 80 or of visiting for a while with the sheriff. She chose the former course. The present litigation was instituted by the two districts that benefited by the redistricting at the expense of No. 80, and is a request for an injunction to prevent the county treasurer from paying the taxes on the commandeered territory to No. 80 and an order giving the money to them. Judge Westover held they had not chosen the right remedy.

GERMAN'S STYLE CRAMPED.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—German modistes have abandoned their once cherished wish of making a "true German" mode, and are contenting themselves with copying Parisian models. Now, the German style houses demand as much or more than the Parisian houses, while the quality of goods used in copying the Parisian masters is far from being so good as the original. The comparison between American and German dress products leaves the latter in an unenviable position. Women of the American colony report gowns purchased three years ago in New York are still intact—if perhaps not the lates as to mode—while German products, equally expnesive, purchased in the meantime, have long since gone to the ragbag. Berlin affects the slim styles current this fall. But it is a bit of a problem to fit the bulk—bulk is used advisedly—of German women with "slim styles." Slimness for the most part is neither popular nor desired.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Garret A. Hobart, vice president of the United States, died after an attack of heart failure several hours earlier.

The stockholders of the Lincoln Traction company held their annual meeting, and the following were elected directors: Moses L Scudder, William Belcher, George E. Ide, Sanford H. Steele, Haley Fiske, John H. Ames, Charles H Morrill, E. E. Brown and C. C. Cuyler.

For some reason the Lincoln Societyette failed to go, altho it started out a bright and interesting publicaiont.

The Bartley bond case was argued and submitted to the supreme court. This was the suit instituted by the state against the second terms of bondsmen of ex-State Treasurer Bartley.

Invitations were out to the wedding of Miss Josephine Lottridge and F. W. Alfred Kind.

Augustus Thomas's play "Alabama" appeared in Lincoln.

Bishop Brent addressed the opium conference.

FRENCH APPROVE LOAN

Morgan Funding Is Formally Endorsed by Cabinet at Paris Friday.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The French cabinet today approved a loan for $100,000,000 arranged by J. P. Morgan and company, and instructed Minister of Finance Clementel to present a bill to the chamber for the necessary ratification.

Clementel presented a bill authorizing the loan for twenty-five years and authorizing the issuance of bonds paying 7 per cent.

75% Of All Sickness caused by clogging

Take constipation seriously; remove it promptly with a stiff dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

AN old-fashioned notion persists that constipation is unavoidable, yet it is easily prevented and may be easily relieved. The fact is that certain foods do not agree with certain people, so avoid those which do not agree with you.

When you feel clogged up take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and relief will come by morning. Many who are habitually constipated take a dose regularly once a week as a precaution.

There are, of course, many other remedies that you can take besides Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Cathartics and physics in the form of pills and powders, however, are harsh and griping; Syrup Pepsin is a liquid, a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant aromatics, and it acts gently and mildly but emphatically. The formula is on the package.

Candy cathartics, which usually contain phenolphtalein, a coal-tar drug, may cause skin eruptions, and salt waters are simply a purge that dries up the saliva. You are therefore best off with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been the standard laxative of thousands of families for more than 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are bought annually.

Every druggist sells it, and at so low a price that an average dose costs less than a cent. Many attribute the unbroken good health of their entire family to the general use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as Mrs. Allie Graham, Handley, Tex., and Mr. A. F. Schmit, 1517 Detroit Ave., Toledo, Ohio. They use it for constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, torpid liver, heartburn, fevers and colds. It contains no narcotics or opiates and is as safe for an infant as for you.

People who know will tell you that Syrup Pepsin is a truly wonderful internal treatment, which dispels all forms of intestinal poisons resulting from constipation and indigestion, disorders which cause 75 per cent of all the more serious diseases. A teaspoonful when you are feverish or feel a cold coming on may ward off an illness and save you time, money and inconvenience.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 516 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

SCANDAL IN LONDON SUIT

ENGLISH BEAUTY INVOLVED WITH EASTERN POTENTATE.

Name of Ruler Kept From Case in Which Husband Sues Midland Bank for 125,000 Pounds.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A pretty blande English woman, fashionably gowned, testified for five hours here this afternoon of her intimate relations with an eastern potentate of fabulous wealth, which have shocked England and threaten an international scandal.

The woman is Mrs. Charles Robinson, wife of a bookmaker and the alleged pawn is an extortion conspiracy by which a blackmail gang extorted upwards of three quarters of a million dollars from the eastern princeling.

A fashionable audience which crowded Lord Darling's court to capacity heard the testimony.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Charles Robinso,n beautiful blonde English woman, whose relations with an unnamed eastern potentate caused a scandal which theratens international complications, was called to the witness stand again today in the hearing of her husband's 125,000 pound suit against the Midland bank.

As the trial was resumed, Sir John Simon, chief defense attorney, declared he will prove that Robinson shared in a payment of 150,000 pounds extorted from the potentate when he was found in a Paris hotel room with Mrs. Robinson.

The suit was brought by Robinson, a bookmaker, because of an alleged payment made by the Midland bank on a check for $125,000 pounds made out to Robinson by the eastern potentate and to which the bookmaker's signature had been forged.

The case has aroused unusual interest because of the prominence of the potentate, who, by agreement between counsel, has been referred to thruout the proceedings as "Mr. A."

"Nothing could induce me to keep out the name of 'Mr. A.,' simply because he is a person of high rank," Lord Darling, the judge, said at the opening of the trial. "It is for reasons of state not connected with his rank that no scandal should ensue where this potentate lives and that is the only cause of my allowing his name to be omitted."

It has been brought out that Mrs. Robinson met the princeling at a victory ball and was intimate with him for several months. The defense charges a blackmail plot, alleging that Robinson and confederates arranged the meeting and a subsequent trip to Paris and then broke in on the couple, threatening the prince with a scandal unless he paid them the huge sums received.

Later Robinson's confederates double-crossed him, forging his name to the prince's checks which they cashed at the Midland bank.

ASK RECOUNT OF ELECTION

Feeling Stirred up in Eighth Judicial District by Technicality of Counting Vote.

PONCA, Neb., Nov 20.—Discovery that several hundred votes were thrown out by the counting boards in Dixon, Cedar, Thurston and Dakota counties, comprising the Eighth judicial district, because many voters failed to put a cross in the square after writing in the name of the candidate, has created a demand to settle the question of who has been elected. A recount of the votes cast in these four counties may be sought.

In Dixon county alone it is estimated that between 400 and 500 votes for C. A. Kingsbury of Ponca, were not counted because the cross was not placed in front of his name. About 190 such votes were thrown out at Wakefield, over 40 at Waterbury, over 50 at Newcastle, over 100 at Ponca and a considerable number in every other voting precinct in Dixon county Regardless of any desire to see C. A. Kingsbury, the candidate from Dixon county, elected, the counting boards of this county adhered strictly to the letter of the law and threw out these ballots. So far as can be learned very few of these ballots were thrown out in the other counties, about 50 for Mark Ryan of Pender being thrown out at Pender and about the same number for S. T. Frum of South Sioux City, were not counted at Emerson.

FIFTEENTH DAY OF BOOM

New York Stock Exchange Continues to Break All Previous Records.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The stock exchange boomed into the fifteenth day of the post-election prosperity wame today with a turnover of 1,169,000 shares of stocks in the first three hours of the market.

Bond sales to 1 p. m., were $15,210,000.

The forward movement in prices continued in the general list despite heavy profit taking after noon. All is Chalmer reached a new higher for the present advance at 64 1-8 and there was tremendous activity in the low priced rails. New Haven and Erie both reaching 32 3-8.

Prospects of a 3,000,000 share day in the near future were discussed in the street following the new high record of 2,616,400 shares yesterday.

Buying orders still poured in from all parts of the country as the market continued its unprecedented activity.

The market closed yesterday, the fourteenth day of record smashing activity with the average for fifty representative stocks showing an appreciation of .42 on the day's trading.

Railroad issues enjoyed the greatest gain, advancing .81 points to 76 69, while industrial stocks remained almost stationary, closing at 126.11, an advance of only .02 for the day.

A deluge of outside buying continued to be the main feature of the hectic trading, allowing the market to absorb a heavy wave of profit taking without driving prices down.

TO DEMAND SATISFACTION

British Government to Make Representations to Egypt in Assassination of Stack.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The British government today was preparing to make strong representations to Egypt demanding "complete satisfaction" for the assassination of Sir Lee Oliver Stack, governor-general of the Soudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army since 1919.

The major general died in Cairo at midnight from bullet wounds sustained when he was attacked in the streets Wednesday.

The assassination has created a "most tense situation," it was admitted in official circles.

The Egyptian minister today visited Austen Chamberlain at the foreign office, conveying a message from King Fuad expressing sorrow and sympathy at eneral Stack's death and horror at the brutality of the crime.

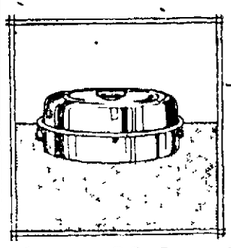

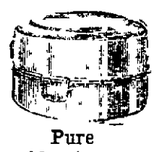

Charles S. Barrett was re-elected president of the farmers' educational union.

TOLL COMMISSION CHARGES

State Railway Commission Hears First Application Under New Statute.

The state railway commission heard Friday the first application made under the new law relating to the division of telephone tolls. For a number of years the commissions were fixed by law 10 to 15 per cent, depending on whether a call was an incoming or an outgoing one. At the last session the law was amended, at the request of some of the smaller companies providing that these should be the minimum commissions, and that they may be as much more as the railway commission may decide.

The plaintiff in the case heard Friday was the Comstock Telephone company, which handles considerable toll business during the year for the Crownover Telephone company, which owns most of the toll lines used for the transmission of these messages. The Comstock company says that the greater part of the business is short distance messages, and that the usual commissions of 10 and 15 per cent do not pay for the labor and bookkeeping involved. It introduced evidence to support its claim for a larger commission.

The Last Straw.

Chicago Daily News. "I am terribly afraid," began the anxious woman, "that the little girl belonging to the new people next door is going to be somewhat of a nuisance!"

"Tut, tut!" reproved the kind husband. "Children are all right if you take them in the right fashion! Why, there isn't a child on earth that will not respond to confidence and approval and——"

"You don't understand," interrupted the anxious woman, as she served the pickled beets. "This little Athletica is not the sort of child who wrings approbation from you, if you get what I mean! Before you can approve of a person there has to be something to approve of, don't you see? And so far there hasn't been a single thing!"

"Now, Begonia," frowned the kind husband. "I have no doubt that little Athletica is a merry, romping girl whom we will grow to love——"

"You can love her if you want to," the anxious woman said skeptically. "I found her wildly raking all the leaves from the tulip bed which I had carefully laid on to save the bulbs this winter. Most of the bulbs were sprinkled around on top the ground, too, like nice little onions. I was so upset I ran toward her crying, 'Oh, don't do that!'

"Athletica gave two more fierce jabs into the bed, dislodging three more bulbs 'Why?' she demanded coldly.

" 'Because I tell you not to!' I snapped 'You are ruining my flower bed!'

" 'Am I?' asked the child and jabbed again.

"I counted ten and said: 'Dearie, come on let's go somewhere else! Why don't you rake in your own yard?"

" 'Mamma doesn't want me to muss it all up,' Athletica informed me cordially. 'She said she was going to have the swellest yard on the street and she'd be darned if I mussed it all up like the last one!' "

"Dear me!" sighed the kind husband. "One of those repressed little ones!"

"You don't care for my tulip bed, I know," the anxious woman told him sagely. "Then she saw Fluffy in the window and with a whoop she crashed thru the hollyhocks to get to the screen behind which Fluffy sat 'You're breaking down all the hollyhocks!' I cried. "Please come away!"

" 'Huh?' said Athletica. "No I'm not! Is that your cat? Shall I let her out?"

" 'Stop it!' I ordered as she began unbuttoning the screen. 'Don't you ever on your life let that cat outdoors from either a door or window.

" 'Why?' asked Athletica, idly continuing to loosen the screen. 'I like her!'

"I picked Athletica up and set her down in the yard pointed toward her own house. 'I think your mother wants you', I suggested firmly.

" 'Uh uh!' negatived Athletica, 'She said for me to go outdoors and play because she was making a cake. I haven't played not near long enough! I'm gonna walk the grape arbor!' Saying which she scrambled up on top of the supports and crashed thru the vines, paying no attention to my orders until she slipped and fell off into the prickly raspberry bushes. Getting out she stepped backward into the lily bed and ruined the last late bloomer!"

"Well, the flower season is over anyhow," soothed the husband. "Teach her to feed the birds and squirrels——"

"She smacked a pebble right against the head of that pet squirrel I fed all last year," the anxious woman said tartly. "He'll never come near me again! I tell you that child is a pest!"

"What's that?" asked the kind husband starting up from the table as a cracking sound met his ear.

"Oh," said the anxious woman who had reached the window first, "it is just little Athletica working off her childish enthusiasm! She is swinging those golf clubs you set out by the back steps and has just broken off the third head against a tree since she began...."

But the kind husband did not wait to hear the rest. He was headed for the back door in a straight line and what he was rapidly saying promised some novelty in the way of entertainment in the immediate future for little Athletica.

Page Senator Shipstead.

Minneapolis Journal. Will some one page Senator Shipstead? He is perhaps the only man hereabouts who can explain why wheat went up, instead of down, as soon as election was over.

When wheat and other farm products began their upward flight last summer, Senator Shipstead explained the phenomenon very clearly. He said it was the result of a great plot, in which the republican party, "Wall street," "the interests" and other malign influences were conspiring to fool the farmer.

But somehow they haven't done so yet. On the contrary, there is a strange buoyancy in the markets, a feeling of serene confidence.

There is, of course, a perfectly good explanation of this failure of Senator Shipstead's prophecy to come true—only we can't imagine what it is. That is why we ask that he be paged at once.

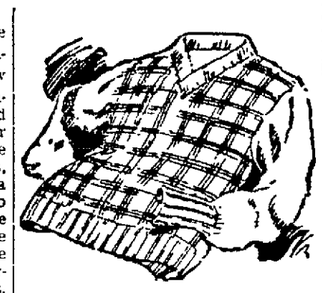

If the republican party and "Wall street" and "the interests" are not going to let prices fall with a bang, if they are going to continue this malefic and scoundrelly regime of better prices for farm products, after election is over and there is no longer any need for it, and right in the face of Senator Shipstead's exposure of their infamous conspiracy, what hope is there for real statesmanship in this country?

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

What Sort of Sweater?

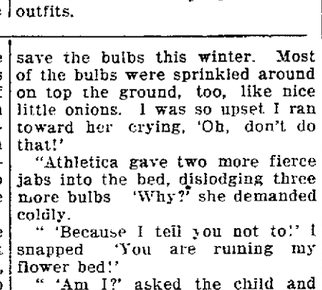

Some microscopic minds make no end of consequence about inconsequential subects, such as how many liver pads are worn in Patagonia; where does Sunday spend Monday and what becomes of your lap when you stand up. It is the same type of man who purses lips, contracts eyebrows, points a solemn forefinger and demands to know whether the coat-style sweater or the pull-over, or the V-neck or the round-neck, or the plain or the plaid is the only correct thing to wear. The answer is, "Yes!" Seriously, however, fashion does not concern itself with these things They are matters of particular preference and individual becomingness, not of fixed rule.

Put on any sort of sweater that you look well in, and you practice the fundamental rule of smartness which is—make the most of your gifts and the least of your shortcomings. Don't become a slave to style for style's sake. Don't confuse mere fashion with correct dress. The two are allied, but not identical. Choose all your clothes with an eye to what favors and flatters you as an individual. Adopt the things which are suited to your figure and type. Avoid the things which are better suited to somebody else. No man, unless so extraordinarily endowed physically, that he is a composite of a Romeo and an Apollo—which no sensible person wants to be—can wear every style pleasingly and effectively. Selective discrimination, and nothing else, makes some of us better-dressed than others.

The knitted sweater, reproduced here, is one of the many types to be had this season—with round necks, V-necks or even square necks; with plaid bodies and plain sleeves or with both of the same pattern; with solid-shade necks or with necks, sleeves and bottom edges embellished with bold stripes in college, club or regimental colors.

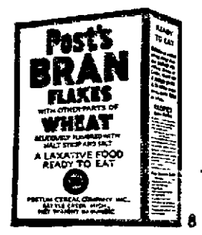

So all-important has the once humble sweater become as a feature of outdoor and sporting dress, that it is not infrequent for a well-dressed man to have half-a-dozen of them to accompany different outfits.

COOLIDGE IN AN ADDRESS

SHOWED KNOWLEDGE OF FARMING CONDITIONS.

Chancellor Avery Says President of United States Made Strong Impression on Land-Grant College Executives.

President Coolidge showed a knowledge of farming conditions and a sympathy with the farmers' economic troubles in an address before the asosciation of land-grant colleges in Washington, D. C., that made a strong impression on the convention, according to Chancellor Avery, who returned Thursday. This was the first time in the history of the association that a president of the United States had attended its meetings. Mrs. Coolidge accompanied the president to the speakers' table. She is a graduate of the University of Vermont and attended as the guest of the secretary of the association, a member of the faculty of the institution who had known her from childhood.

The president invited R. W. Thatcher, director of the Geneva, N. Y., experiment station, University of Nebraska, '98, and C. W. Pugsley, president of the South Dakota agricultural college, University of Nebraska, '06, as his guests on the Mayflower over the weekend in order that he might have the benefit of their advice in relation to agricultural condition.

The chancellor acted as chairman of the military committee of the association. The report urged an act of congress permitting the war department to give advanced credit for military work outside the R. O. T. C. units, and urged the war department to permit officers detailed to universities to remain in the service as long as possible.

At the close of the convention, the chancellor spent some time in Washington in conference with the director of the American council on education. He then made a trip to Philadelphia and to Bethlehem, where he was the guest for a day of President and Mrs. C. R. Richards, formerly of Nebraska.

The chancellor also visited Lafayette college at Easton, twelve miles distant, where the president of the institution found the name of the chancellor's father, Stephen B. Avery, as a student on the records for the year 1850. At Easton the chancellor made a brief chapel talk to the students.

On the return trip a stop was made at the University of Pittsburgh, where Chancellor Bowman, formerly of Iowa, is planning to erect a temple of learning in the form of a skyscraper fifty stories high. The utility and architectural features suggested slightly the Goodhue tower to be erected for Nebraska and the Tribune building at Chicago.

At Pittsburgh, Dr. Avery also visited the famous Mellon institute of industrial and chemical research, founded by the present secretary of the treasury and supported by industrial firms having problems requiring help. Better methods in bread making, converting slag into building material, rust-proofing iron, and other investigations were under way. The chancellor gave some attention during the trip towards securing a librarian for the vacant post.

LOOMIS SENT TO PRISON

Bridgeport Man Is Sentenced on Statutory Charge.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 21.—Contending that a crippled minor girl, who had been living as his daughter, was only an adopted daughter, Edward Loomis, known in in this vicinity as "the preacher" because of his religious harangues, was allowed to plead guilty to a statutory charge and was sentenced from ten to fifteen years in the penitentiary. An original case charging incest had been filed against him and he was up for trial on that charge during this term of district court. Judge Barron allowed withdrawal of the original information and substitution of his plea of guilty to the other charge.

COMBINE TO HELP CHINA

POWERS CONFER IN PEKING ON THAT NATION.

United States Is Taking Part in a Pyan to Restore many menof a Plan to Restore Poltical Order and Financial Stability.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The United States and the other great powers have combined to restore political order and financial stability to China.

The most important diplomatic conference in the far east in years is now going on in Peking, with representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan working in concert on instructions from their respective government on a plan to be offered to the Perking government as the price of foreign recognition.

This was learned here today from unquestioned sources, which said the plan being evolved is first and foremost in China's own interest and not primarily for the protection of foreign interests. The plan involves offers of diplomatic and economic support in restoring without any form of intervention.

One of the first conditions of foreign support and assistance is agreement among the wrangling Chinese factions, whose jealousies and bickerings have been responsible for the recent civil war, on a government all of them will support.

Recognition will not be extended to Feng Yu Hsiang, whose orient coup d' etat overthrew the Peking dictator Wu Pei Fu, unless he can establish a non-factional representative government with promise of permanence, it is understood.

Rival Chinese leaders including Chang tso Lin of Manchuria, Sun Yat Sen of Canton and Tuan Chai Jui, chief of the Anfu party, in temporary alliance with Fenb against Wu, will be expected to agree on a government which they will support permanently.

SHAKE-UP IN DEPARTMENT

General Change in Chicago Police Bureau Is Imminent, Shoemaker Announces.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A general shake up in the police department is imminent it was made known today as the new chief of detectives, Captain William Schoemaker, noted as a "hard boiled copper" made plans for driving the gunmen out of Chicago. Mayor Dever and Chief of Police Collins have given Schoemaker orders to stop at nothing in his cleanup campaign.

Schoemaker is known to favor replacing many of the detectives with "hard boiled coppers" who will not be intimidated. More than 100 changes in the detective bureau are expected. Several shifts have already been made.

Capt. Michael Hughes, former chief of detectives who resigned rather than accept demotion, is planning to make a fight on the municipal administration. He charges political considerations caused his removal from the detective bureau.

A number of arrests were made during the night.

Sanguinary gang warfare, almost unmolested beer running and other criminalistic activities by gangsters, caused Dever and Collins to demand vigorous action.

Another gang murder occurred yesterday when Tony Marcuso, known to the police as a beer runner and gun man, was shot to death.

WIN TRIPS TO CHICAGO

Nebraska state championships in 1924 boys and girls club work have been awarded to Judith Mathson of Mitchell, home economics champion; Cleora Majors of Lexington baby beef club champion; and Clifford Jacobsen of Eagle, pig club champion, according to a recent announcement from the Agricultural College extension offices at Lincoln. These three young people were the best in thir divisions of this educational work in which about 5,000 Nebraska boys and girls were enrolled during the summer of 1924. Three disinterested judges compared the entries made by each county thru their county extension agent or their local leader.

Each of the winners will receive a prize trip to the Third National Boys and Girls Club congress which will be held at the same time as the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago.

CHRIS HICKEY BANKRUPT

Files Voluntary Petition Friday Citing Debts of $19,358 and Assets of $6,050.

In his assets Mr. Hickey lists seventy acres of Missouri land and a quarter section in Garfield county, mortgaged for $1,000 ;and store fixtures worth $1,250. Several hundred unsecured claims are listed. the largest creditors being the Central Tire and Repair company, State Journal company, Magee's, Ben Simon, E. I. Pothast of Murdock, the Central National bank, Lincoln Drug company, Loose-Wiles, Richard Hudnut, Wentz Plumbing company and Roberts Furniture company.

AROUND THE WORLD.

Geneva—Hahatma Gandhi, leading philosopher and educator of India, has telegraphed the anti-drug conference here urging total abolition of poppy culture in India.

Lille, France—The German general von Nathusius, recently arrested while visiting the grave of his son, was sentenced to two years imprisonment for stealing furniture and silver of the chateau he used as headquarters during the war.

Paris—A luncheon given yesterday by Les Annals in honor of nations friendly to France, was the mark of an unusual political truce—ex-Premier Poincare being the presiding officer, while Premier Herriot was the guest of honor. Ex-President Aleslandri of Chile was a guest.

Rome—While a committee of the chamber of deputies is drafting the law applying to the Sinclair concessions, several deputies are scheduled to speak against it.

Moscow—Denouncing the American federation of labor, Bakharen, writing in Pravda, declares Gompers is less advanced than the British conservatives who favor recognition of Russia, saying "Gompers reflects the spirit of the czarist black hundred."

Madrid—The opening of the play "Righteous Lives" with ex-Deputy Marcelino Domingo in the leading role, was not well received here last night.

CANNOT ENDORSE TREATY

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Foreign Minister Chamberlain today sent a note to Russian Ambassador Rakovsky declaring the new British government is not able to recommend approval of treaties between Great Britian and Russia signed by the labor government of former Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Whole forests of bamboo are cut down every year to supply the need for phonograph needles.

SAHARA

The economical domestic fuel.

SAHARA is an ideal coal—it is well prepared, clean to handle, and above all, it produces more heat than other Illinois coals.

These qualities make SAHARA the most desirable coal for stove, range or grate and because it mines large and blocky and does not slack, consumers find it profitable to handle.

It is the universal satisfaction this coal has given over a long period of time, that gives new buyers confidence to order it.

EXPLOSION IN LABORATORY CAUSE OF BLAZE.

Defective Ceiling Ignites and Lincoln City Fire Department Is Called to Save Old Building.

Fire in the old capitol started Thursday afternoon about fifteen minutes past 3 o'clock and for a time there were some indications that Governor Bryan might have to seize his skull cap and seal of office and hasten his intended removal to the new capitol hard by. Land Commissioner Swanson, exercising delegated custody of the old building, viewed the smoke with some alarm lest the entire list of state officers might be compelled to move into the new section whether they desire to or not.

The blaze started as a result of an explosion of the contents of a glass condenser over a hot gas blaze in the laboratory of the bureau of health, department of public welfare, on the fourth floor. Flames shot up to the ceiling but in less than a minute died down again. Directly above the gas condenser there is a ventilator in the ceiling. The roof is a few feet above the ceiling. Exposed insulation made of hair and tow instantly ignited about the ventilator. A hand fire extinguisher was used but failed to put out the fire. The city fire department was called.

Firemen on Scene.

The firemen worked for nearly an hour, using chemicals from extinguishers. The inflammable insulating material exposed in many places in the plaster of the ceiling smouldered and the fire was put out with considerable difficulty. A hole was cut in the roof above the charred material and chemicals used until there was no longer any trace of sparks.

Leonard O. Vose, bacteriologist, and his assistant, A. D. Davidson, were near the condenser when the explosion took place but were not burned. Charles Morrissey, laboratory assistant, had just gone to another portion of the building.

The capitol commission contemplates tearing down the old building following the adjournment of the legislature next spring and will soon call for tentative bids on the cost of removing the material, but as the records of all state departments and a valuable state library are still housed in it its removal by fire at this time would be considered a great calamity. "Premature, to say the least," said one state official.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner dance of the Saturday Night club was given Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel, with thirty couples present. Places were arranged at seven round tables placed in a circle in the center of the ballroom, with the outside spaces clear for dancing. A horn of plenty, made of yellow and orange crepe paper and filled with fruit, vegetables and nuts, formed the centerpiece of each table, with a single tall black taper in a crystal holder tied with orange tulle at the apex of the horn. Turkey favors covering nut cups were at each place, with candy corn sprinkled about the table. The orchestra platform was decorated with bright oak leaves on small white trellis frames which stood in green window boxes. In the center of the stage was a large pumpkin with openings in the sides, thru which autumn fruit and nuts were seen. A tall orange taper, in the midst of bittersweet and autumn grasses decorated the top of the pumpkin, which was surrounded with several smaller pumpkins. A little man and woman made from vegetables and dressed in quaint style stood guard at each side of the large pumpkin. Clusters of oak leaves decorated the side lights which were shaded with soft blue and orange, and at each end of the ballroom were streamers of orange and black crepe paper. There were several favor dances during the evening, with small decorated paper parasols, horns of various shapes and colors, and rattles as the favors.

Two hundred girls who are students in the kindergarten and primary department of the teachers' college at the university attended the annual "kid party" at Ellen Smith Hall Thursday from 6 o'cock until 8. Following the dinner at 6 o'clock there were a number of appropriate games. Prizes were given for the cleverest girl's costume and the cleverest boy's costume. A short program was given consisting of a reading by Frances Carrothers, a dance by Katherine King, and a vocal duet by Ellen Fitzlen and Louise Gardner.

BENEDICT MAN IS CHAMPION HUSKER

Virgil Archer Shucks Twenty-three and Two-tenths Bushels in Hour and Twenty Minutes.

Over 2,500 people attended the state cornhusking contest given at the O. J. Lohr farm, one mile north of Swedeburg, Thursday afternoon and saw Virgil Archer of Benedict, Neb., win the state championship against eight other contestants, by shucking 1,627 pounds, or twenty-three and two-tenths bushels in an hour and twenty minutes. Louis Dinklage, Wisner, won second place with 1,582 pounds, or twenty-two and six-tenths bushels to his credit. A. G. Anderson of Sutton took third place with 1,509 pounds or twenty-one and one-half bushels and Joseph Korte of Raeville was fourth with 1,496 pounds or twenty-one and three-tenths bushels.

The contest began shortly after 2 o'clock. The participants were furnished wagons and equipment. In the alloted time for husking, Dinklage shucked more corn than did Archer but he was penalized 309 pounds because of the corn he left in the field and some husks that were left on the ears. Archer was penalized 117 pounds for the same reasons.

Mr. Archer, winner of the contest, will go to Des Moines, Ia., this week where he will enter the mid-west contest to be held Monday at Alleman, a small town near Des Moines, at which time he will compete with the winners from three other states, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, for the championship of the four states.

In the contest held at Swedeburg a prize of $50 and a medal was given the winner, and the other three prizes were $25, $15 and $10, respectively.

In addition to the cornhusking contest, a mechanical husker was demonstrated in the field and a "lazy farmer" exhibition was staged by two farmers of the vicinity who betook themselves to the field in a rattly old wagon, hauled by a pair of aged horses, to shuck. The wagon was equipped with a radio with the aerial fastened to the "bang" board. One of the men drove while the other engaged in the business of filling up the wagon. The spectators eventually filled the wagon for them.

Doctor Condra of the state university was present and made moving pictures of the proceedings and pictures were also taken by a representative of the Fox pictures. Refreshments of doughnuts and cider were served to the spectators and participants.

Mr. Dinklage, who won second place, is entitled to participate in the mid-west contest at Des Moines provided he is willing to pay his own expenses. A prize of $100 will be given the winner there. Mr. Archer will leave some time Sunday for Des Moines.

MERE MENTION.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the frame garage belonging to B. E. Sanders, 1749 Euclid Thursday night. The alarm was turned in by a neighbor. When firemen arrived the blaze had gained such headway that they were unable to check it. The garage was empty.

Rye vs. Coffey is the unusual title of an appeal case filed with the supreme court Thursday. H. L. Rye secured a judgment in Dawes county against Thomas Coffey and his wife Nora, holding that they had connived to defeat the collection of a previous judgment by Coffey transferring to her some of his lands. Mrs. Coffey appeals.

An attempt will be made by the street department head to abolish the advertising clause in connection with purchase of muny gas. He holds that the process is too slow. The charter requires that when an item shall cost more than $500, the council must advertise. Commissioner Cowgill assumes that he can get by either via the so-called utility exemption route or on the emergency theory.

A petition for the administration of the estate of the late Johan Wilhelm Jarms, who died November 4, 1924, was filed in the county court Thursday afternoon. The estate was valued at $3,000. Under the terms of the will his grandson, Martin Keesman, is bequeathed $2,000. The remainder of the estate which consisted solely of personal property is given to his son, Henry C. W. Jarms, who is also named his administrator.

The work of tinting walls in the new capitol was commenced Thursday. The original walls in all offices in the new section were white but these are to be tinted with oil and paint. The commission decided that colors on the office walls would be more agreeable and that they would not so quickly become soiled as plain white. Many of the offices are likely to be occupied before the first of the year and the commission will hasten the painting. Mural paintings for the governor's office and the supreme court rooms may be deferred for several years.

Following a small blaze in the bureau of health laboratory in the fourth story of the old capitol, Land Commissioner Swanson had a road way built to the space between the old and new buildings on the east side of the capitol grounds so that the city fire apparatus might drive near the building in case of a fire in the old structure. A watchman was kept near the laboratory until 10 o'clock at night for fear of smouldering fire in the ceiling of the laboratory. The city fire chief told state officers the large stock of hand fire extinguishers kept in the capitol saved the building from burning. These were used by the firemen and no fire hose was laid.

L. J. Butcher, inspector for the state fire marshal, investigated and the county attorney filed a complaint against Fiedler. The machine destroyed was old and working badly when it was burned. It was insured for $500 which was more than its value, according to the state inspector. Grain uninsured worth over $600 and owned by Olson was destroyed by the fire.

Governor Bryan has issued a proclamation designating December 7 as golden rule Sunday and urges citizens to follow the plans agreed upon by many nations for raising funds for 60,000 children in American orphanages, salavaged from war in Syria, Greece and Armenia. "They will surely perish if we fail to bring them food," says the governor's message. Every one is asked to eat a plain, simple dinner on golden rule Sunday, the kind these refugee children will get, and then donate the difference between the cost of the simple dinner and the one ordinarily served on Sunday.

WILL INSPECT ORDINANCE

Legal Department to Ascertain Whether or Not Muny Gas Measure in Form.

The city's legal department will scrutinize Commissioner Cowgill's gas ordinance to make sure that it is in proper form for introduction and passage. It is the custom for the city lawyers to draft such things.

There will be no voice raised in opposition once the ordinance is declared o. k. by Deputy Attorney Wilke. It is possible that the attorney may draft a new one but the meaning will be clear. Since the people have spoken on the subject of muny gas, councilmen have no desire to obstruct the public will.

Between now and Monday the station will continue to operate without hindrance from city officials. Mr. Cowgill claims to have made a profit of $6.41 on the first day's business. This amount he computed after paying for labor but without deducting for overhead.

OBJECTS TO BIG ALIMONY

CHRIS TIERNAN FIGHTS HIS WIFE'S CLAIM FOR $75,000.

Wealthy Property Owner of Lincoln Eighty-three Years Old, Defends His Possession of His Estate.

Christian Tiernan, eighty-three years of age and worth a quarter of a million dollars, was in supreme court Friday, by attorneys, defending a judgment of the Lancaster district court that denied his third wife Elizabeth, who is half his age, alimony in the sum of $75,000.

According to the pleadings Tiernan was seventy-eight when he married the plaintiff, who had spent ten years in a convent and was making her way thru the world by her own exertions. He married for a home and peace, and she wedded him for a home and its comforts. The attorneys told the court that neither of them seemed able to fit themselves into their new environment, and as her attorney put it, he reduced her to destitution and then deserted her. They also described him, altho possessed of $265,000 worth of Lincoln realty and in enjoyment of a gross income of $25,000 a year, as living a morbid and miserly life.

The case, in another form, was before the court once before. The first judgment gave her an absolute divorce, alimony in the sum of $125 a month and affirmed the antenuptial contract by which Tiernan was to enjoy the rentals of certain property during his life-time, and at his death the property should become hers.

Mrs. Tiernan is now asking for a modification of the decree. She says that she wants $75,000 in full of all claims of alimony, and wants the antenuptial contract rescinded as against public policy and tending to facilitate divorce and separation. She says that the contract gives her nothing worth while, and she tenders a quit claim deed to the property covered by it.

Tiernan's attorneys said that the court could not supply happiness. All it could do was to take from Tiernan and give to her, and the only question was, how much? They argued that $125 a month keeps her in comfort, that she is not entitled to $75,000 because she did not contribute to the accumulation of his fortune, and that the courts have already settled the question raised as to the antenuptial contract.

GOVERNMENT RESTS CASE

Postal Inspector Is Last Government Witness in Roundout Mail Trial.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The government today rested its case in the $3,000,000 Rondout, Ill., mail robbery trial.

Charles A. Clarahan, New York postal inspector, was the last government witness. He testified William J Fahy, once considered the "crack" postal inspector in the Chicago area, had admitted certain connection with the band of robbers that held up the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train last June. Fahy denied he was the "brains" of the plot, however, Clarahan said.

Fahy, who is on trial with two Chicago politicians on charges of "engineering" the hold up, was to be the first defense witness at the afternoon session of Judge Cliffe's court.

FORMER MISTRESS OF WHITE HOUSE PASSES

funeral trip across the country and the ceremonies at Washington and Marion.

Altho she never once collapsed, her friends knew that the burden of being a president's wife had marked her as certainly as it had marked and claimed Mr. Harding himself.

Her health began declining rapidly.

Shortly after her husband's funeral, Mrs. Harding moved out of the white house, returning to Marion where she prepared to make her permanent home at peaceful White Oaks, surrounded by lifelong friends.

But even White Oaks was not without is tragedy. Two months ago Brigadier General Sawyer dropped dead very suddenly and the shock of his passing contributed appreciably to Mrs. Harding's decline.

Marion is Shocked.

Marion, where the name of Harding has been a household word for years and in whose cemetery the late president's body lies, was shocked immeasurably by Mrs. Harding's death despite the fact it had been expected for days.

At the time of the passing of Brigadier General Sawyer, many close friends of Mrs. Harding predicted she could not live long without his skill as a physician and his long acquaintance with her case.

The fact that Dr. Sawyer had treated Mrs. Harding for many years was an important factor in his appointment to the position of personal physician to Mr. Harding when he became president.

"Dr. Sawyer is the only man in the world who can really help my wife," the president said at the time. "I am happy that he can be near us here."

Born in 1860.

Mrs. Harding was born in Marion, O., August 15, 1860. On her father's side, her ancestry was sturdy "Pennsylvania Dutch," while her mother, Louisa M. Bouton, was of French descent.

She early became an ardent horse-woman. She kept her love of horses all her life. She reluctantly took to the automobile in later years.

Late in the seventies, Florence Kling met Henry De Wolfe, whom she married in Marion. Soon after the birth of her only son, Marshall Eugene De Wolf, in Prospect, O., in 1880, she obtained a divorce. Her divorced husband died some time prior to her marriage with Warren Harding.

Her son, Marshall Eugene De Wolfe, died in 1915 of tuberculosis in Denver, Col., leaving to survive him two children and his wife, who subsequently remarried.

Met at a Dance.

Florence Kling first met Warren Harding at a dance in the eighties. Despite the strenuous objections of her father, Harding began an ardent courtship. Kling told his daughter that the struggling young publisher of the Marion Star had no future and would "never amount to anything."

Florence, however, defied parental wrath and married Harding in Marion on July 8, 1891. Amos Kling disowned her and for years would not speak to his son-in-law tho they became reconciled eventually.

The early days of the Hardings were a struggle to put a small country newspaper on its feet.

Mrs. Harding took complete charge of circulation. For fourteen years she worked in the Star office, mapping out carrier routes and organizing squads of "newsies." She ruled them with a firm hand. No reunion on the "Front Porch" during the campaign days of 1920 were more appealing than when a score or more of Mrs. Harding's former charges, now prosperous business men, returned to pay homage to her and her husband.

No children were ever born to the Hardings.

"We haven't any children," Mrs. Harding once said. "I wish we had. The senator plays with every child he meets. He flirts with them, even the babies in arms."

Thru the years that Harding acquired influence and prestige in Ohio and rose by successive steps to be United States senator from Ohio and president, Mrs. Harding's gentle guidance was always present. The Harding home acquired state-wide reputation for hospitality. Suffering from recurring illness, Mrs. Harding never let her condition hamper or impede the steady march of her husband in national affairs.

A Washington Hostess.

Harding was elected to the senate and Mrs. Harding took her place among the hostesses of Washington She always looked back with pleasure on her senatorial days

"They were so pleasant and so less difficult than at the white house," she said.

The year 1920 came and Harding was mentioned as a candidate for the presidency, and with it came a premonition of disaster.

"I am content to bask in my husband's limelight," Mrs. Harding said shortly before the republican national convention of 1920, which nominated Harding, "but I cannot see why anyone should want to be president in the next four years. I can see but one word written over the head of my husband if he is elected and that word is 'Tragedy.'"

"The only reason I want to go to the white house," she said, "is because it is his wish."

OMAHA DOCTORS IN BIG DAMAGE SUIT

Andrew Stohlmna Asks $10,000—Claims Doctors Did Not Give Proper Care to Son's Leg.

A suit claiming that Dr. B. B. Davis and Dr. Herbert Davis, both of Omaha, were guilty of improper care and neglect in the treatment of the diseased right limb of Leroy Stohlman, was filed in the district court Friday by Andrew Stohlman, the boy's father, in which he seeks to recover $10,000 damages.

The petition charges that the Doctors Davis were given the care of the diseased limb on November 12, 1923 and that they operated on the infected bone just above the knee. A few days later the foot began to swell and continued to become worse until amputation was recommended by Dr. Herbert Davis.

At this point Dr. J. P. Lord was consulted and an operation by him resulted in avoiding amputation The plaintiff's charge that the defendants were negligent in not giving the foot attention at the proper time and that Dr. F. B. Davis went away on a vacation when the boy was in serious condition, leaving no word with the boy's parents of his planned absence from the case and its treatment.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Grain prices closed irregular on the Chicago board of trade today.

Buying of considerable wheat for export to the continent resulted in a rally that recovered early losses and levels at the close were fully even to fractionally higher than yesterday's close.

Corn, which opened under yesterday's close, made further sharp losses. December finished 4c under yesterday's figure or 3c under today's opening. May and July deliveries were somewhat firmer but lost fractionally.

Oats lacked individual features and lost some ground in sympathy with corn and wheat.

Provisions were affected by lower corn and hogs and prices were slightly under yesterday's figures.

Grain Market Opinions.

Sam Altman: We look for irregularly lower levels for the time being.

Bartlett-Frazier: We are confident of majority of much higher prices.

Clement Curtis & Co.: Statistics show little change.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: We believe purchases on weak spots will prove profitable.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: Wheat is not likely to hold advances until some of the nearby load finds more buyers. This price of corn is likely to inspire economy in every direction.

Thomson McKinnon: Wheat may prove somewhat irregular during the period of digestion of nearby grain. We believe coarse grains possess great merit.

Weinand: December wheat longs best sellers yesterday. Look for somewhat further drop on which favor purchases. Also look for coarse grains to ease off temporarily.

Chicago Tribune: Wheat traders think the market should respond to the very heavy export buying on the breaks. Unless December longs are thru selling the market is not expected to be favorable to the bulls. The advance in corn has started the country to selling and they are offering new corn freely in good sized lots. Shippers are not buying to any extent. In central Illinois $1.06 is being paid to farmers for No. 4 corn. From action of the markets the short interest in all grain, especially wheat, has been cut down. The trade had it that 2,000,000 bushels wheat were bought for a New York trader who sold out a line a few days ago. Receipts continue large and it is a question of storage room. One of the factors in the advance in corn has been the closing of spreads, wheat being sold and corn bought. Rye acts heavy. While the seaboard is selling rye for export, cash grain is being brought here to deliver on December sales. Export sales yesterday were estimated at 1,000,000 bushels wheat, 500,000 bushels rye, and 60,000 bushels oats. Late cables brought in most of the business.

Herald-Examiner: As has been hinted for several days, the wheat market acts tired and seemed headed for lower levels. The trade is bullish as to the ultimate price but the foreign demand is less aggressive. Supplies abroad are apparently ample at the present time. Corn shows a weaker undertone. The cash demand fell off abruptly. Around 300,00 bushels new corn were bought, to arrive largely from Illinois points.

Journal of Commerce: December liquidation reflects pressure of immediate supplies and this is against the market at the moment. May wheat yesterday closed at a premium of 7¾c over the December. A year ago the difference was 5c. Much interest was shown over the arrival of a cargo of new corn which showed only 14.6 per cent moisture and graded No. 2 white. It sold at $1.16.—Lamson.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21.—Wheat closed here last night unchanged. Corn closed here last night 2@3c lower.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—An increase of approximately $51,000,000 in rediscounts of the local federal reserve bank was the reflection of recent extraordinary activity in the stock market and accounted for a slight falling off in the institutions reserve ratio which stood at 73.6 against 77.2 a week ago.

But despite the greater demand of Wall street banks upon the central reservoir the latter's total rediscounts were still not much more than half of last year's, demonstrating why the board paid no heed to reports circulated this week in the speculative community that an increase in the rediscount rate might be promulgated.

With the continued ease indicated in the money situation, stocks went ahead in vigorous fashion in the early dealings.

TO ABOLISH OCTROIS.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Again the gates of Paris are threatened and this time they are liable to fall. A campaign has been started to remove the "octroi," and if it is successful a picturesque and annoying heritage of the middle ages will disappear. The old wall has been almost completely torn down since the late war, and only a few strips of it have been left standing as souvenirs. Yet the octrois, with their iron gates and tired functionaries, remain, and no vehicle can pass without being checked. What was the outskirts of Paris when the wall was built is now the residential district of the greater city. Beyond this circular boundary lies a great part of the city, and every day thousands of vehicles must pass these gates. The driver of every car must stop, measure his gasoline and report it to the guard. He receives a slip of paper permitting him to pass, and must turn this in when he re-enters. This is due to the fact that tribute must be paid on goods entering the city. Gasoline is slightly cheaper outside than within, and that is why all motor vehicles are watched. Very rarely do the guards check up on the declarations of drivers, but the tedious formality must be performed.

A Joyous Time Was Had.

Los Angeles Times: Five monkeys, led by a ringtail baboon named Maggie, got out of their cage the other night at the Fanciers' exchange and before a large and appreciative audience that blocked the sidewalk disported themselves for fifty-five minutes as follows:

They knocked a dozen parrots off their perches and drove one cockatoo, but not without some retaliation to one monkey's grief, onto that part of the door frame nearest the ceiling.

They opened cages and released other small parrots and pursued them here and there, swinging over the counters and along electric wires.

They released a cage of Japanese robins, which are worth $8 apiece and strangled a half dozen of them to death, or merely picked out their eyes.

They overthrew globes of goldfish and chuckled with glee to see them floundering on the floor.

They threw dog biscuits, cat food, fish wafers everywhere.

They broke bottles of evil-smelling mange cure and dusted flea powder about with commendable diligence.

They tried to open a cage of tiny puppies but were convinced of their error by the growls of a heroic Irish terrier next door.

They climbed onto the topmost shelves and overturned everything overturnable.

The five monkeys did all these things, and many more, with an eye on the audience, which at times threatened the windows by so much shoving. As the frolic was in its height, the proprietors of the place arrived, and presto! all was serene as soon as they entered. Not a monkey was in sight, but a scene of utter dog-and-cat-emporium greeted their eyes.

The white cockatoo from its perch, like Poe's raven, on the lintel of the door, emitted a shrill scream of relief and the other birds, dogs and, it seemed, fishes joined in a hearty chorus of thanksgiving.

But it was half an hour before the monkeys could be caught and caged.

Puns On Pussy.

The boys had been told to write an essay on cats and this is the effort of the class comedian: "There are lots of kinds of cats. Cats that are made to maul and tease are called Maltese cats. Some cats are known by their queer purr—these are called Purrsian cats. Bad-tempered cats are known as Angorrie cats. Cats with deep feelins are feline cats."

Bad Shot.

"Did Jobson hit anything on his hunting trip?"

"Hit anything? Why, he even missed the train."

Stationary.

Some fellows can't "come back" because they have never been anywhere.

Wed and Part in a Day.

Chicago Tribune: Society circles of Baltimore are stirred over the matrimonial escapade of Mrs. James Carroll Jenkins, an attractive divorcee, and Leigh Bonsal, jr., scion of a prominent Maryland family. The two, while members of a motor car party, became engaged in the morning, were married in the afternoon and separated at midnight and, according to the bride, a pet puppy precipitated the climax.

Leigh Bonsal, sr., prominent attorney, says: "Proceedings to annul the marriage will be begun at once," and his new daughter-in-law says most emphatically that she loved young Leigh, that he loved her and there would be no annulment, as the marriage was perfectly legal as they were both of age and Leigh had told her they would be married over again if his father had their wedding annulled.

As proof of her husband's affection, Mrs. Bonsal displayed two costly diamond rings which she said her husband bought for her before they decided to get married.

According to the bride, young Bonsal was attacked by his brother, Pleasants Bonsal, when he returned to his home, and the attack, Mrs. Bonsal said, is what caused the separation, for Bonsal was injured and is confined to his home. But Mrs. Bonsal insists that the attack on her husband was not caused by the marriage, but by a setter puppy which Leigh Bonsal, jr., started to take from his home against his brother's objections.

But Bonsal, sr., further says: "My son and Mrs. Jenkins were only acquaintances. In a spirit of silly joking, encouraged by some friends who should have known better, they were married without realizing the seriousness of it."

Mrs. Bonsal was formerly Miss Catherine McPhail. She was married to Jenkins in 1920 and divorced last year. Mrs. McPhail, the bride's mother, agrees with Mr. Bonsal, sr., that the marriage should be annulled.

Men and Things

Why is it that none of the politicians and statesmen are out making speeches now? True, the campaign is over, but the need of the people to be educated along political lines is as great as ever, as we can prove by calling as witnesses every defeated person and party. If a private monopoly is indefensible between July and November of presidential election years, why is it not equally indefensible now, and why are not the democratic orators whose stock in trade this is saying and doing something about it? One cannot blame the people from growing cynical towards politicians and political parties when the only time any interest in the voters is shown by them is when there are offices to be filled.

Attention has been called to our neglect in not asking for three rousing cheers over the announcement that Magnus Johnson was beaten for senator in Minnesota. It was an oversight entirely. The fact is we were sitting on the edge of our chair waiting for the glad news that never came from Iowa, that Brookhart was beaten. We cannot put any real enthusiasm into cheering over Magnus' passing until the senate has passed on whether it wants to continue being annoyed by having as big a nuisance as Brookhart around. The rising to the top of the political caldron of such men may be expected when the depths are stirred, but when the discontented and the discouraged who were responsible for their temporary fame become entirely sane again they will feel chagrin over this chapter.

It is an old aphorism in politics that if a man wants fame he must "get in with the reporters." Some ambitious men think that this means giving them cigars and patting them on the back and slipping them stories about what "I" have done or intend doing. Others more canny make it a point to do things that the reporters cannot overlook or give them tips on where they can dig up stories. The notion that the reporters cannot harm or help a man is not entertained in political circles. Henry the Eighth wasn't any better king than many who went before or came after, but he was always providing material for a story for the papers—and look where he looms in history.

When we run for president we propose to put our campaign in charge of the committee that decides each year what styles of dress shall be worn. For a good many years the women struggled against its domination, but today practically every woman wears what she is told is the thing. Flushed with that success the style-makers are now proceeding to boss the men. We never thought they would be able to do it, but their power is growing yearly. They say this ought to be popular; presto, it is popular. Imagine how that would transform political campaigns.

The most amazing thing about the girl shows which are so popular in the metropolitan centers is not that men flock in great numbers to view the thinly disguised charms of the performers, but that so many women can be found who thus almost strip themselves because of the pay that attaches to such exhibitions. No one would have the world return to the old pruderies of dress, but it is quite evident to even the most limited comprehension that there is a proper medium between the two extremes that modesty bids women should observe. The morals of the race have always been in the particular custody of the women, and when they toss up the job the end of things is not far away. Fortunately but a small percentage of them show any such inclination, but even that small percentage makes a rather imposing total.

The truth is that the wise men have always highly recommended themselves. One needs but to dip a bit into Roman writings for proof as to how the ancients regarded it. Horatius insisted that he who is wise is inferior only to Jove alone; that he is honored, rich, free, fair, a king of kings. Luceretrus said that wisdom removed life from its tempests and darkness into so calm and clear a light, and was willing to admit that the great god Memmus, who first proclaimed wisdom as the great rationale of life proved thereby his right to be a god. According to the wise men there is nothing to be said on the other side, whereas there is much to be mentioned.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

3 Minutes to Answer This.

In one election district 7,200 votes were cast for three candidates. The victor received 100 votes to every 80 cast for his nearest rival and the second candidate scored 100 for every 75 cast for the third man. Now, who can tell how many votes were cast for the winner?

Answer to Yesterday's.

Regarding the value of the letters of "T. Owen," just number them consecutively: T, E; O, 2; W, 3; E, 4, and N, 5. Then the TWO are worth 6, TEN is worth 10, NONE is worth 16, while a TON amounts to 8.
